ARREST PHIPPS

Lily Pond Hotel Man, Now a Prisoner in Burnap Tragedy, Submits Quietly When Apprehended by Police.

WORCESTER, July 12.—Frank W. Phipps, proprietor of the Lily Pond House, where Charles L. Burnap was shot and killed early Monday morning, was placed under arrest shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Edgemere House. He was taken to Worcester.

After hearing the stories of James W. Stevens of the Edgemere House and of Frank W. Phipps, proprietor of the Lily Pond House, both of which bore out the above theory, the whole force of officials working on the case, headed by District Attorney Taft, went to the scene of the tragedy to-day and searched for further clues in connection with the crime.

Accompanying District Attorney Taft in an automobile were State Officers Murray and Molt and Selectman Winchester, of Shrewsbury. They reached the Lily Pond House shortly before 11 o'clock. They went over the ground thoroughly.

HOUSE IS CLOSED.

The officers were greeted at the road house with the savage growls of a number of dogs. The house was closed. This surprised the district attorney, who, turning to some of the officers, asked:

"Where is Phipps?"

"He's in Worcester," was the reply.

"Who's with him?" the district attorney asked.

He was told that he was being looked after by an officer. The party did not attempt to get into the house. They continued to the Edgemere House and had a talk with George Whitney.

Whitney, so far as is known is the last man to see Burnap alive. His story is that shots were fired on the fatal night from two different spots. He heard shots, but so far has not mentioned the name of any one who fired.

District Attorney Taft had this to say to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter about the case:

"I propose to push this case to the very bottom. I shall not give it up. This mystery must be cleared. The guilty must be punished.

"I think you may expect important developments soon."

I DID NOT SHOOT HIM.

"I did not shoot Burnap. I am innocent of any crime. I did not fire a shot that night. I admit that I had been drinking—but I'm a changed man now."

That in brief is the story of Frank W. Phipps, proprietor of the Lily Pond House. It was near there the body of Charles L. Burnap was found Tuesday afternoon. The young man had been shot through the heart.

Although the State police have cross-examined all the men and women they have been able to find who were at the Lily Pond House on Monday night, when the tragedy took place, only one arrest has been made.

GIRL HELD AS PRISONER.

The prisoner is pretty Mary Brennan. She is held on a charge of manslaughter in $1,000 bail. She at first said that she did the shooting in order to protect Frank Kelly, a young Shrewsbury special police officer, who had been kind to her.

Then Kelly saw her and she changed her mind. She said she did not do the shooting. Kelly declared he did not do the shooting. He said he knew who did. He gave the name of a man to the police.

Frank W. Phipps, seated in an old-fashioned chair, nervously twitching his face and shifting his foot from right to left, with a Shrewsbury police officer, James Moran, within twelve feet of him, to-day told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter his story.

Phipps is short of stature, of smooth face, pure white hair and lustrous eyes. He has the look of intelligence written all over his face.

"I tell you I am innocent of anything that may be charged against me," he said. "I did not fire a shot the night that Burnap is supposed to have been killed. This thing has completely unnerved me, and I only wish the State police would hurry and clear it up. I will tell you that they are on the wrong track. Burnap never met his death in the open air. I can't tell you, because I don't know the circumstances. All I remember that night is going to the Edgemere Hotel and coming back and going to bed.

"But to get back to my story. Now let's reason this thing out. Burnap was found at 3 o'clock in the afternoon over there (pointing to an open space that is plainly visible from each side of the road). Well, he was supposed to have been shot some time in the night. Now does it stand to reason that his body would have lain in that spot all day and no one see it. I tell you that it is impossible. Mr. Perkins, the milkman, passed that spot in the morning. It was broad daylight.

DID NOT SEE BODY.

"Now if Burnap was shot during the night his body would have been there in the morning. Perkins was not the only one to pass the place. The road is traveled a great deal and over a hundred persons passed that spot in both directions during the day. Will you account why they did not see the body. I, myself, went by that place twice on the morning following the night Burnap was supposed to

HAYWOOD PUNCTURES ORCHARD 'CONFESSION'

ACCUSED MINERS' SECRETARY MAKES A STRONG IMPRESSION AS WITNESS.

By I. S. Dunnigan.

BOISE, Idaho, July 12.—On taking the witness stand in his own defence, William Haywood is making a general and sweeping denial of all the charges that Harry Orchard voiced against him in the memorable opening days of this famous trial to fix the responsibility for the murder of former Governor Steunenberg.

Haywood's denials are frank, specific and pointed. He is self-possessed, and never falters in making direct answer to the most searching questions. He makes an excellent impression, and with his story only half told this morning his counsel say that when he has finished he will have gone far toward insuring his own acquittal.

Brave Women Beside Him.

While he testifies the prisoner's wife, mother andd aughter sit close to him and look searchingly into his face. Love shines in their eyes, and confidence, not only in his innocence, but in his ultimate vindication, is manifested in their every move.

With the appearance of the defendant himself on the stand interest in the trial is revived once more, and a crowded court-room listens with rapt attention to the well-modulated tones of the prisoner as he unfolded his own story of his relations with Harry Orchard.

Haywood was first called to the stand yesterday afternoon. The defendant seemed slightly nervous as he left his seat beside his counsel and walked to the stand. He began speaking in a low tone and was requested by Judge Wood to speak louder. Then he cleared his voice, straightened up, and after fifteen minutes fully recovered his composure, and even went so far as to relate a humorous anecdote about Orchard that sent a wave of laughter around the court room.

Darrow conducted the examination, and in response to the introductory question, Haywood said:

"His father and step-father were both miners and he first began work as a miner under the latter when he was nine years old. He was born in Salt Lake City in 1869. His father was born in Ohio, and his mother in South Africa—the daughter of an English army officer. The witness, who has but one eye, said he lost the other when a boy of seven by sticking a knife into it.

Never Knew Steunenberg.

Continuing, Haywood declared in earnest tones that he never knew Governor Steunenberg, and had no interest in the Coeur D'Alene troubles other than as a member of the Federation. He was asked if he ever said to any one, as has been testified, that Governor Steunenberg should be exterminated.

"No, sir," he replied. And then he added:

"I think what I said was that he should be relegated, and I took a hand in relegating him."

Haywood said he first met Orchard in 1904, at the time Moyer met the man. Orchard was a delegate from one of the Cripple Creek miners' unions to a convention of the State Federation of Labor. The witness denied as flatly as Moyer did yesterdayt hat Orchard was at Federation headquarters in December, 1903, and that he had congratulated Orchard on blowing up the Vindicator mine.

Never Gave Orchard Money.

"He never spoke to me at any time about the Vindicator," declared Haywood, "and never received any money from me."

"Did you ever give Orchard, at any time or any place, any money for the Independence explosion?" asked Mr. Darrow.

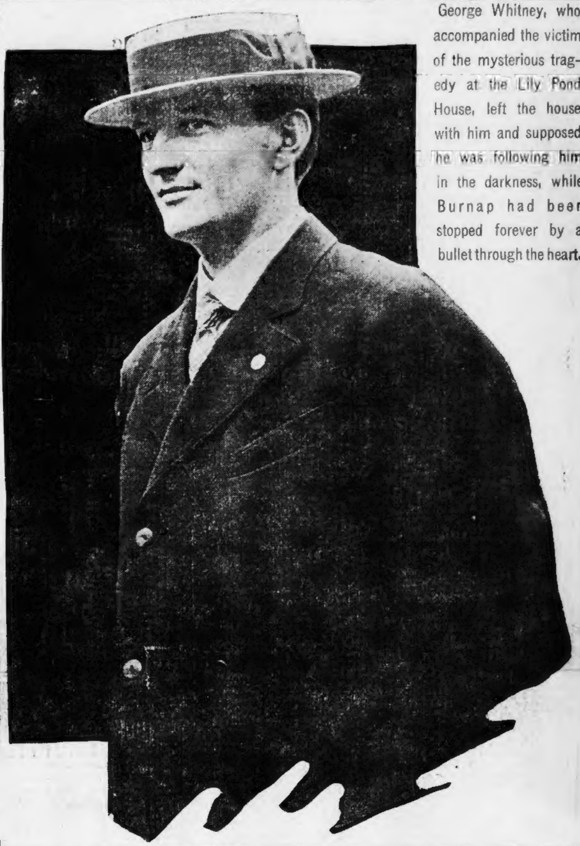
"I did not."

Haywood said he saw Orchard in Pettibone's in May, 1905. He remembered the incident because of Orchard having solicited him to take out some life insurance. He had no further conversation than to decline to have a policy written. He next saw Orchard in the middle of July.

"Did you and Moyer ever have a conversation with Orchard in Pettibone's back yard or anywhere else, as to the killing of Governor Steunenberg?" asked Darrow.

"No, sir," came the reply in ringing tones.

This Is the Last Man Known to Have Seen Burnap Al



George Whitney, who accompanied the victim of the mysterious tragedy at the Lily Pond House, left the house with him and supposed he was following him in the darkness, while Burnap had been stopped forever by a bullet through the heart.

Bowie Defence Pleads Higher Law, Saying

WOMAN SLEW JUSTLY!

Concludes Argument for Mother and Son Who Killed Girl's Betrayer.

La PLATA, Md., July 12.—When court convened to-day the trial of Mrs. Mary E. Bowie and her son, Henry, for the murder of Hubert Posey, who jilted Priscilla Bowie, Congressman Sydney E. Mudd began his argument for the defence with the direct statement:

"We place the defence in this case upon what we call the unwritten law."

It had been known all along that this would be the defence, but few doubted that some legal twists would be used to put a more formal front upon the arguments.

Then came this assertion:

"The widow protector of a defenceless family was justified in committing this act."

The jurors listened attentively. They were sitting erect and the expressions of several of their faces seemed to indicate that this was the sort of argument they wished to hear.

"What I contend is the unwritten law as found in the progressive development of the common law," continued Mudd, "as recognized in the constitution of Maryland, where it is recited that the inhabitants are entitled to the common law of England and the statutes of England to the extent that they, by experience, have been found applicable to their local and other circumstances.

"The common law is not the law of the Medes and Persians. It is not like the law of China, founded upon the principle of Confucius, by which men are sought to be governed to-day by the departed spirits of their dead ancestors. It has developed by the inculcation of this doctrine into the common law of America.

"We have not resorted to what we consider as little less than the subterfuge of medical experts to prove insanity.

Defendants Not Insane.

"We do not believe and do not claim that these defendants are insane.

"It is aid that we have resorted to fiction for the defence, that from Moses to Maryland the laws have been 'written.'

"If judges can consistently resort to fiction in order the more appropriately to determine the right of a man to an acre of land, surely it need not be considered as such a monstrous thing for juries in this day, in this State, to resort to what may be termed fictions, in order to preserve the life and liberty of the citizen, and the chastity and virtue of the home and fireside."

As Mudd concluded there was a stir about the court room, but the judge called for order, and the officers prevented any demonstration.

Attorney Wilmer then spoke for the prosecution. He depended mainly upon a strong plea for the defence of the young men of Charles county.

BIG GUNS' BOOM KILLS BEACHMONT WOMAN

WINTHROP BATTERIES' PRACTICE CAUSES MRS. HARTSHORN'S DEATH.

After a day of torture, caused by the continuous firing of the mortar battery at Fort Banks, Winthrop, Mrs. Eunice A. Hartshorn, aged forty, of No. 30 Summer street, Beachmont, died to-day.

Dr. B. A. Andrews of Revere, who was in attendance on the invalid, declares positively that, although the woman had been ill for several weeks, she was improving up to yesterday, and that death was brought on by the continued concussion of the air caused by the heavy firing, which brought about heart failure.

It is one of the most remarkable cases on record and a rigid inquiry will probably be asked for, although no blame, of course, attaches to the artillery officers under whose direction the annual target practice was held.

There are four mortars of the largest calibre at Fort Banks, and projectiles hurled by an enormous quantity of explosives were sent clear over the town of Winthrop and out to sea, where the floating target lay. It was fine practice for the soldiers and showed splendid marksmanship, but at every report window panes in Winthrop and Revere were smashed by the concussion, while inside the houses crockery and other light articles were made to rattle, in spite of the protection of the walls.

Captain H. D. Todd, Jr., commander of Fort Banks, Winthrop, said this morning: "I deeply regret to hear of the death of Mrs. Hartshorn. Had her physician notified me of her condition I would have communicated with the War Department and arranged to have the target practice suspended pending her removal to a hospital or developments in her illness. Had I known that the effect of the gun firing was felt in Revere I would have notified the Selectmen of that town forty-eight hours before it begun, as we do in Winthrop. The target practice is only twice a year. Yesterday we fired nineteen 12-inch mortars at a floating target in Broad Sound, 6,000 yards from Fort Banks."

SENATOR BACON LOSES FORTUNE

MACON, Ga., July 12.—About half of United States Senator Bacon's small fortune was swept away by the failure of the Exchange Bank last week. The Senator was worth $75,000, half of which was represented by Exchange Bank stock. The stock is now worthless, and it is said the Senator will be assessed heavily to pay depositors.

SAFE ROBBER SURRENDERS.

CHEYENNE, Wy., July 12.—John F. Thompson, the safe robber who escaped from Deputy Sheriff Joseph Day by jumping from a train near Denver, late last night gave himself up.

have been shot. I did not see Burnap's body and neither did Mrs. Pine, who was with me. (Here Mrs. Pine interjected and corroborated Phipp's statement). Now you will find that Burnap came to his death in some house. I will tell you here it was not mine. I will say that, but adding to the best of my knowledge and belief.

"Again I will deny that I fired a revolver that night. I don't know who killed Burnap. I don't think that it was either Mary Brennan or Frank Kelley. Kelley is a good boy. He is, and I believe is now, a good friend of mine. This thing is terrible.

"Mary Brennan came here of her own free will. She was a good girl and I am sorry she is now in jail.

"I want to tell you this much that this has given me a lesson. I was drinking heavily on the night that this supposed shooting occurred, but I know that you generally lock the barn door when the horse gets out, but no more "booze" for mine. I am going to be a different man from now on.

"You can say to the public that I am here and will remain here until the time comes for anything.

"There is one thing strange about this, and I have imparted the facts to the State police, and I guess they don't take much stock in it. But on the night that Burnap's body was found three men, all strangers to me, one wearing a white soft hat, came to this place and demanded admittance. We refused it, and they fired shots from revolvers in the air and went away. I don't know why they did this, but I know that they wanted me, for I could hear them shout to me, 'Phipps, come out here if you dare.' "

KELLY IN A QUARREL.

The story told by James W. Stevens, a guest of the Edgemere House, throws additional light on what took place at the Lily Pond House on the night of the shooting. Stevens said:

"I went to the Lily Pond House in the evening and was there when Kelly came to the house with the Brennan woman.

"Burnap and Whitney were there, and Kelly was sore because Burnap was paying attention to the Brennan girl.

"Kelly had taken her driving in the evening in order to get her out of the way of Burnap, whom he heard was coming over to see her. When he found him there, the two men had some words, and Kelly flashed his badge and, saying that he was a police officer, ordered Burnap to leave the place.

"Burnap was in an ugly mood and refused to do as ordered, but finally went out, and Kelly, in a spirit of bravado, followed him out showing his revolver. Pretty soon Kelly came back to the house. I did not see Burnap again, but I think that he was put out of the way by some one and the body was secreted until the next afternoon and then carried out to where it was found."

Fred Aubrey of the Edgemere House to-day said that Burnap was not a hotel hanger-on as he had been characterized in some quarters, but one of the best men he had employed at his place. Aubrey said that he ran a regularly licensed bar.

EXPEL PINKERTONS.

THOUSANDS TO JOIN IN $200 GOLD HUNT

Nantasket Scene of Next Sunday's Search for American's Buried Treasure and Paragon Park Tickets.

Next Sunday promises to be the biggest day in the history of Nantasket Beach. Thousands of people are making preparaties to go. The $200 in gold, as well as the 500 Paragon Park tickets, to be hidden there by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN will prove one of the main attractions. Besides that the Paragon Park people are going to make extra exertions to entertain visitors.

Many of the thousands who thronged Revere Beach last Sunday searching for the buried treasure will join the hunt next Sunday. Every dollar of the $200 in gold hidden at Revere was found. Young boys and girls were especially lucky. There will be just as good a chance at Nantasket to find the gold and tickets—in fact better.

The Girl with the Red Dollar Sign and the $50 in gold should be a great deal easier to locate. The figure of the girl was published in the BOSTON AMERICAN yesterday. Her face will be published in the next Sunday AMERICAN. Other facts as to her movements on Sunday will also be given Sunday.

Clues are Published.

The first thing to do is to get the SUNDAY AMERICAN and find folded in the Comic Supplement the Buried Treasure page. It will contain the second installment of the lively romance of love and adventure, "The Red Dollar Signs."

In this story will be found hints as to where the Red Dollar envelopes and cylinders containing the $200 in gold and the 500 tickets to Paragon Park will be secreted. Some of the gold will be outside of Paragon Park and some inside. All of the 500 tickets will admit to the park and some of them to all of the attractions.

Queries by the hundred have poured into the AMERICAN office this week as to facts concerning the next $200 gold hunt. From all over Greater Boston assurances that it will be an exciting gold chase have come, with especially a large number from such near-by cities and towns as Rockland, South Weymouth, Braintree, Brockton, Campello, Hingham and others.

Make arrangements to join the search.

GREAT RUSH OF COUPON HOLDERS TO SUMMER PARKS

The merchants at Revere Beach say that last Sunday, when the BOSTON AMERICAN planted its treasure and called nearly a quarter of a million people of Greater Boston to the shore, they sold out everything. They are happy as the result.

Next Sunday's AMERICAN will hold coupons for the Roller Coaster, Musical Railway, Automobile Race, Mystic Rill, Rough Rider Hippodrome, Fairyland Theatre, Palace Merry-Go-Round, Theatre Comique, Hurley's Hurdlers, Boulevard Theatre and Rollaway Skating Rink.

Manager McLean of the rink, agrees as, usual to accept coupons for admission and in addition count the coupons as ten cents toward the hiring of skates, if they are presented by women.

At Canobie Lake Park the boating and fishing season is at its full height and proving no small adjunct to general park interest. The boat houses are worked to fullest capacity and the great lake is dotted with small craft early and late. It is from this lake that the biggest pickerel of New England are daily extracted. Next Sunday's coupons will be worth twenty-five cents to purchasers. Admission to the park is free.

The big bears at Lexington Park have become highly sociable as they sit around on their haunches like picturesque old Eastern idols. It is suspected that their appetite for peanuts is at the bottom of their smiling facial expressions, and children feed them goodies by the hour.

SUNDAY AMERICAN coupons giving admission to the grounds, in which nearly all the features are free, will as usual be published in next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

A new set of White City coupons will be published Sunday, giving thirty cents' worth of attractions at White City, near Worcester, the first three days of next week. AMERICAN coupons in great numbers have been used at the Quinsigamond resort since the opening of the park, and the management says they are as welcome as real money.

BOSTON AMERICAN STARTS OLD HOME WEEK BUREAU

The BOSTON AMERICAN'S OLD HOME WEEK POSTOFFICE AND INFORMATION BUREAU opened to-day.

If you are coming to the great Old Home Week celebration which begins in July 28, you will want to avail yourself of the valuable accommodation which this bureau will extend without a penny of cost to you.

Do oyu want to find the people who lived next door to you in Boston twenty years ago? Do you want to meet the cousin that lived in Boston when you did, but whose whereabouts are now unknown to you? Are you anxious to secure the addresses of those friends or relatives who you think live in Boston, and whom you would visit if you acme here?

Send in Your Name.

Just send your name to the BOSTON AMERICAN old Home Week Postoffice and Information Bureau, No. 80 Summer streets, BoBaton. Say whether you have decided where you will stay while you are here.

When you arrive in Boston come to the bureau and register your name and address.

Have your mail addressed to you in care of the bureau and save yourself the long wait in line at the General Delivery window at the postoffice.

Make your appointments and meet your friends and relatives at the bureau.

You will find thousands of names registered there. In the lists you will, probably, run across some names almost forgotten but still the names of men and women you once have known, and whom you would like very much to see again.

If you live in Boston and are expecting visitors, send your name to the bureau also. Others of your friends who will come to Boston from every part of the country will be glad to know where they may find you here.

If you were in Boston during the national encampment of the Grand Army in 1904 you will remember the great success that attended the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Grand Army postoffice. Hundreds of old comrades were reuinted through the good offices of that postoffice. The information bureau, which was maintained by the AMERICAN during that encampment, was of great service to the veterans and was officially endorsed by them.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN OLD HOME WEEK POST OFFICE AND INFORMATION BUREAU will be even more successful. The experience gained in managing the institution during the Grand Army encampment wil make the Old Home Week Bureau a much greater success than was its wonderfully successful predecessor.

No Charges for Service.

A corps of well-posted attaches will be in attendance. Your questions about Boston and Boston people will be promptly and carefully answered. At the Bureau you will be able to secure information which will be available no place else.

Make the Bureau your home while you are here.

Come to it when you are in need of information or advice about anything in Boston.

The service will not cost you a cent, and it will make your visit to Boston during Old Home Week a great deal more pleasant an dprofitable than it would be otherwise.

MRS. BRADLEY IN HOSPITAL

WASHINGTON, July 12.—After eight months' confinement in the United States jail awaiting trial, Mrs. Annie M. Bradley of Utah, the slayer of former United States Senator Arthur Brown of Salt Lake City, was to-day taken to the George Washington Hospital to undergo an operation that may confine her there several months.

The woman's devotion to the memory of the man who, she says, ruined her and then cast her off, has been one of the most marked features of her imprisonment. From her first day in jail she kept Brown's picture before her on the dressing table where she could see it day and night.

NEW CLUE MAY REVEAL SLAYER OF WOMAN

New Hampshire Officials Trail Another Suspect in Studley Mystery.

EXPECT ARREST SOON.

SALEM, July 12.—For the first time in over a week's hunt for the slayer of Mrs. Annie H. Studley, the Boston woman whose body was found in Canobie Lake, the Rockingham County officials are on the trail of a suspect who is known to them. Who this person is Sheriff Collis and his deputies refuse absolutely to say.

The movements of this man at the time just preceding the mysterious tragedy are now being closely investigated, and an arrest of the suspect may be expected at any time.

The Rev. Henry Candler, who discovered the body in the lake at about dusk on Tuesday of last week, is giving the sheriff and his aids valuable assistance in their investigation. It is he who recalled that when he found the body, on rolling it over in the water, the tongue was swollen and protruding and the lips were covered with froth. This indicated strangulation.

Taylor Saw Body Found.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day Mr. Candler admitted that he had related this fact to the sheriff, as exclusively told in yesterday's BOSTON AMERICAN. In regard to the finding of Mrs. Studley's body, Mr. Candler has also recalled other circumstances which he forgot to relate to the sheriff in the excitement attending the discovery.

He now says that George W. Taylor, the negro hostler, who tells of hearing three screams by a woman on the night Mrs. Studley was slain, and of a maniac running into the woods near the scene, was present by his side when he pulled the body from the water with his umbrella. This fact, which is a distinct surprise to Sheriff Collis, was not mentioned by Taylor when he told his stories to the authorities before his release as a witness.

Taylor has disappeared since, and the Sheriff is anxiously searching for him again to further question him as to this circumstance. The Sheriff feels that it is strange that Taylor did not tell him that he saw the body recovered, in recounting his movements at the time.

Sheriff Collis has asked Mr. Candler what the man said at the time. Mr. Candler cannot recall that Taylor at that time mentioned hearing screams the night before, or told of a demented man running into the woods when he approached.

An attendant at the Concord Insane Asylum has been in Salem for two days with photographs of two escaped criminal lunatics, in the hope that one or the other might be identified by persons who saw the strange acting man on the shores of the lake. There were two men who broke jail recently who have not been recaptured. One is Vaschi Czenovos, a Greek serving a life sentence, and Frank R. Marsh, doing two years for burglary.

The latter is about thirty years old, five feet ten inches tall, weighs about 150 pounds and is smoothed faced. The maniac seen by the lake has a moustache.

Taylor, who has dropped out of sight since his release, was to have gone to work on the fine estate of Levi Woodbury, proprietor of the St. James Hotel, Washington, who has his Summer home here. When Mr. Woodbury heard Taylor's story of the screams by the lake he gave orders not to put him to work, and Taylor has not been seen since he was freed.

The further report of Professor Angell as to the conditions of the organs on Mrs. Studley submitted for chemical analysis is due to-day.

MAN CAUGHT AT PISTOL POINT

After an exciting chase in which gun play figured Patrolman Henry C. Shields of Quincy captured an alleged burglar at an early hour to-day whom he charges with smashing the big plate glass window of the store of John J. Kerrigan, on Central avenue, Quincy. In court the prisoner gave the name of Frank Walsh, no home, and was held on the double charge of breaking and entering and attempted larceny.

It was just after 2 a. m. when the policeman heard the crash of glass. He found a man trying to get into Kerrigan's store through a big hole he had just made in the show window. The chase and arrest followed.

BETS ON RACES; LOSES $16,000

NEW YORK, July 12.—The telegraph company and its racing news bureau, which was abolished by vote of the Board of Directors before Captain F. Norton Goddard died, figured in an alleged swindle, which Siorenzino Bergimo told the police cost him $16,000. Bergimo is a tailor with a store at No. 68 Market street, Newark. On his complaint Detectives Griffin, Cavone and Digilio arrested Frank Marshall and John White at an alleged poolroom in Lexington avenue, between Forty-first and Forty-second streets.

Bergimo told Inspector McCafferty that in the three months between April 1 and June 29 he put up this money in various alleged poolrooms at the suggestion of White.

DIVORCED, IS BRIDE NEXT DAY

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 12.—Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt, divorced by Arthur L. Pratt, a wealthy paper manufacturer, has married Frederick I. Pease in Colorado Springs the day after receiving her divorce. She accompanied Pease to the county clerk's office to get the license and her head rested on his shoulder all the time she was there. Pease lived here ten years ago, and gossips said he much admired Mrs. Pratt.

WALKING FROM HUB TO SAN FRANCISCO

WABASH, Ind., July 12.—Herbert L. Brown of Boston, Mass., a Harvard graduate, is walking from Boston to San Francisco on a college wager. He asserted he could make the long walk, and his college friends bet him he could not. He reached Wabash ahead of his schedule. He has until October 13 to reach San Francisco.

NOTED WRITER PENNILESS.

"Ouida," Louise de la Ramee, author of sixty novels, severe critic of America and American customs, found living in squalor and in want of food in Italian hut.

AVERT STRIKE FOR ONE DAY

Although the trolleymen of Newton were in readiness to strike this morning for the enforcement of the demands they have made upon the Newton Street Railway Company, trouble has been averted for to-day at least, as a result of a conference held between Organizer W. J. Walsh of Quincy and Treasurer Rezie Ore of Detroit, both national officers of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes, and Lucius Tuttle, president of the New England Civic League, in an attempt to reach some basis for bringing the matter to a settlement.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning word was given that the men should go to work to-day.

There will be a meeting of the union this evening, when the proposition that has been received will be put before the men.

WOMEN, COME TO MY FUNERAL

—Mark Twain.

LONDON, July 12.—Mark Twain has confided to an interviewer that among all the delightful things which struck him in England, two of the most delightful were the women and strawberries. He said he had found some of the most beautiful women he had ever seen, but he refused to give their names or addresses. He added:

"I am inviting them all to my funeral. It will be the greatest gathering of beauty and magnificence the world has ever seen."

Of English strawberries he said that they are both refreshing and spectacular. American strawberries are spectacular, but are somewhat flavorless.

OUIDA, FAMOUS AS NOVELIST, IN DIRE WANT

Once Lived in a Palace, Now Finds Refuge in a Squalid Italian Hut.

SQUANDERED A FORTUNE

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, July 12.—Profound surprise was created here to-day on receipt of the news that Ouida, most famous of living women novelists, and most bitter critic of America and American institutions, has for many months been in the direst want in Italy, at times being actually in want of food.

For the past few months this distinguished woman has been making her home in a milkman's squalid hut at Massarosa, eight miles from Lucca, Italy, where in the days of her affluence she lived in great luxury.

Ouida, whose name is Louisa De La Ramee, and who has been phenomenally successful as a novelist for women, has written not fewer than three score books during her long pen career, and many of them have been perennially salable. Those who knew her in Lucca believed her to be possessed of an ample fortune.

It is said that an investigation of her condition proves that her absolute ignorance of the value of money and of business methods is responsible for her poverty, her wealth being dissipated in extravagances and in foolish investments.

Through the appearance of her name on the new list of civil pensions for literary merit, the investigation of her condition was made and the fact of the downfall of the famous writer was first learned.

IS FINED $20 FOR SPEEDING HIS AUTO

Stewart Estey, son of a Worcester automobile dealer, was before Judge Barnard of the Brighton Police Court to-day on two counts and was fined $10 on each. It was alleged that on June 29 the defendant was speeding in Brighton without a certificate of registration and without displaying his number.

KOREAN ENVOY FLAYS JAPAN FOR TREACHERY

Amazing Story of Cruelty and Oppression Told at the Hague by Prince.

ASKS POWERS FOR AID

THE HAGUE, July 12.—"Highwaymen," "barbarians," "murderers," are the mildest terms Prince Tiyong Oul Yi of Korea has for the Japanese at The Hague peace conference when asking the powers to save his country from the Mikado's oppression.

"Japan is trying to steal Korea as barefacedly as ever highwayman robbed a stage coach," he told a Publishers' Press representative to-day, discussing his mission from the Korean people and his relative, the emperor.

"Many of our public men have committed suicide rather than submit to the barbarities of Japanese government. Our emperor is the Mikado's prisoner. It is untrue that he has repudiated his representatives at The Hague. His jailers have tried to discredit us—that's all.

Japan Treatment Infamous.

"I accuse Japan of unheard-of infamy in its treatment of Korea. I venture to doubt whether England will continue satisfied with her Japanese alliance when she learns in detail the story of Japan's treachery against Korea and the permanent lie by which the Mikado is maintaining its usurpation of our rights.

"In its declaration of war against Russia Japan declared that one of its principal reasons for beginning hostilities was its desire to insure Korea's independence, as America pledged Cuban independence at the outbreak of the war with Spain.

"The world can see now how differently Japan and America regard their pledges.

"Korea considers America its best friend, and Koreans are profoundly grateful for the manner in which the United States has always aided their country by word and deed.

"H. B. Hulbert, the American who was our Emperor's most trusted adviser twenty years ago and who accompanied us here, has left for the United States, where he will lay our case before President Roosevelt.

KING TOMCAT AS USEFUL AS ENGLISH KING--DR. AKED

Rockefeller's Pastor Tells Why He Prefers America to Land of His Birth.

By Angela Morgan.

NEW YORK, July 12, 1907.—"I have always had a great longing to become an American citizen. From the very dawn of my intellectual life I became possessed by the idea that my best work would be done under the Stars and Stripes."—Rev. Charles Frederick Aked.

Expressing unreservedly his delight in possession of his first citizenship papers and declaring that the ambition of his life would become realized when he was entitled to call himself an American, the Rev. Charles Aked yesterday gave his reasons for the action he is now taking.

Sitting in his study chair at No. 2 West Eighty-sixth street, the English pastor of John D. Rockefeller's church recited with enthusiasm the story of his desire.

"I have always loved America," he declared. "Had it not been for the fact that duties in England tied me, I should have come to this country long ago. I am beginning to regret now that I waited so long.

"To begin with, in America there is no hereditary monarch. I have been a Republican all my life. I have always had a contempt for monarchy. I agree with Mark Twain that if we had King Tom Cats, King Tom Cat the First up to King Tom Cat the Twentieth, it would have been just as useful and quite as moral.

"You have no House of Lords to sit on one's chest and stifle one's best ambitions. You have no established church.

"America has no sectarian system of education—and of all hateful things English sectarianism, with its narrowness, its snobbery and the persecuting spirit, is one of the most hateful on the face of the earth.

"You have no such military despotism as is found in England—no such caste and class in this—no such vast vested interests in the promotion of war.

"The drink evil is nothing in America in comparison with what it is in England.

"There is a higher standard of education here than in England. Again, the standards of morals here is very much higher than in England. An American girl is a thousand times better able to protect herself than an English girl. The American woman has the happiest life of any woman in the world."

Dr. Aked Contrasts England and America

I HAVE always had a contempt for monarchy.

Here you have no House of Lords to sit on your chest and stifle your ambitions.

America has no established church. The conviction of my life is that the state establishment of a church degrades religion.

Of all hateful things, English sectarianism, with its narrowness, snobbery, its political and moral dishonesty, is one of the most hateful on the face of the earth.

There is a restless intellectual activity in America practically unknown in England.

An Englishman will do nothing that is not absolutely according to precedent. An American thinks it his business in life not to follow precedents, but to make them.

The American girl is a thousand times better able to protect herself than the English girl.

I fell in love with the American woman on my first visit to America, in 1893. I thought of her then as I think of her now as the flower of evolution.

TO RISK LIFE AT NIAGARA.

Fair Margaret Fielding, athletic and daring young woman, at Revere is training for perilous swim through famed Whirlpool Rapids.

DARING GIRL TO SWIM THE WHIRLPOOL

Pretty Margaret Fielding in Daily Practice at Revere for Perilous Feat.

AT NIAGARA AUGUST 25

How would any one of the thousand and one pretty girls who go bathing at Revere Beach like to take the perilous swim through the Whirlpool Rapids at Niagara Falls?

Mighty few of them. A little paddling up and down the shore at Revere or a swim out into the safe water and back satisfies most of the girls.

But there is a pretty girl, only twenty-one years old and whose plump figure weighs 138 pounds, who is swimming off Revere Beach every day now to keep in condition until she goes to Niagara Falls to swim the Whirlpool Rapids on August 25, next.

That girl is Miss Margaret Fielding, at present one of the swimmers in the "Under the Sea" exhibit at Wonderland.

A Perilous Test.

The Whirlpool Rapids swim is enough to try the muscle and courage of the stoutest man, to say nothing of a girl. Over a score of men and women have lost their lives attempting the trip. Only five or six people, so far as known, have ever gone into the Rapids and come out alive at the other side to boast of it. It is a thoroughly dangerous, nerve and body-racking swim. Yet Miss Fielding is going to do it as the result of a $200 wager. She is going to try to do it, at least. And she says she is going to succeed. She was asked to-day if she wasn't afraid. This was her smiling reply:

"Afraid? Why, no, I am not afraid of my coming feat. Of course, I very fully realize the danger of swimming the Whirlpool Rapids, but I will be in good physical condition and do not fear the outcome.

She Wants That $200.

"Cora Beckwith swam the Rapids during the Pan American Exposition at Buffalo, and I figure that if she could do it I can. Besides the fame that I will get by accomplishing the swim I will also get $200. This is certainly worth trying for. It is considerable money for a girl who has to earn her living as I do.

"In order to be in good condition for the test I am swimming every day in the ocean at Revere Beach. I like Revere Beach very much. It is an excellent beach for bathing and swimming being remarkably free from undertow. My brother, Gene, goes with me every day and we take long swims together.

"No, I don't think I am taking my life in my hands to try to swim the Niagara rapids. Of course, I know that Captain Web and others lost their lives while attempting to make this swim, but that doesn't frighten me. I am going to succeed."

CUT CROSSES ON TREES.

DANIELSON, Conn., July 12.—James Callunas is in jail for hacking 1,000 trees in seven different towns. Callunas admitted that he cut crosses with a hatchet, believing that they would bring peace and righteousness throughout the world.

HEAVY FOG HALTS SHIPS, DARKENS CITY

Dense fog, which for the last two days has been reported at sea, swooped down upon Boston early to-day, tying up harbor traffic and interfering with the railroads.

Tow boats, ferry boats and other harbor craft are moving with extreme caution, as nothing can be seen beyond the length of the docks. The marine observer at Hull reports that he cannot even see as far as the water's edge.

All along Atlantic avenue and throughout the wholesale district the atmosphere was like twilight in the offices and the electric lights were turned on the first thing to-day.

There are several big ocean liners due or overdue that may be in the bay awaiting a chance to enter the harbor. They are the Jesseric from Manila, the Hadden Hall from Mexico, Sylvania from Liverpool, the Roanoke from Fowney, England, and the Cymric from Liverpool.

KING'S YACHT BROKEN UP.

NEW YORK, July 12.—The famous yacht Hildegarde, built for King Edward when he was the Prince of Wales, in 1874, has been broken up and consigned to the junk pile at Hackensack, N. J. The yacht originally cost $85,000.

ELOPED, LOST COURAGE, THEN ELOPED AGAIN

Mrs. William Conn Is Now Happily Married and Forgiven by Relatives.

IS ONLY 18 YEARS OLD

Special to the Boston American.

BROCKTON, July 12.—Eighteen-year-old Mrs. William Conn, who until yesterday was Miss Mabelle Lawton, announced to-day that her elopement to Providence, which was followed by her marriage there, was the second elopement in which she and her young husband had figured.

"We went to Providence in October last," she said to-day, "and we would have been married there had I not lost my courage and begun to cry. The license had been secured and Billy had bought the ring.

"Tuesday Billy and I went to Providence again. This time Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell joined us. We were married by the Rev. Mr. Torrey at the First Congregational Church. Then we came back home and were forgiven by all our relatives.

"The only reason they were opposed to our marriage was that they thought we were too young."

The bride was graduated from the Brockton High School two years ago. She has been a stenographer in Boston lately. Her husband is employed by a shoe firm.

ORANGEMEN'S BIG OUTING AT ESSEX TO-DAY

Clad in bright regalia and to the sound of martial music, 1,000 Massachusetts Orangemen marched through the streets of Boston to-day to the North Station where they boarded a special train for their annual outing at Centennial Grove, Essex.

A record-breaking crowd is expected at the great aniversary of the Battle of the Boyen, and a fine list of athletic events has been prepared. This evening a banquet will be held, at which General Master Stewart will deliver an oration, including the story of his recent visit to the scene of the famous battle.

The committee on sport will comprise Albert J. Hall, John Hamilton, hCarles Mc Kee and Nathaniel Balbin. On the general committee are Thomas Milligan, chairman; William Dawson, secretary, and M. C. Campbell, treasurer.

Watch Your thirty Feet of Bowels!

YOU have thirty feet of Intestines!

What makes food travel through them?

A set of Muscles that line the walls of these Intestines or Bowels.

When a piece of Food rubs the walls of the Intestines these Muscles tighten behind it, and thus it starts a Muscle-wave which drives it through the whole length of the Bowels.

It should take about 12 hours to do this properly, so that nutritious parts of the food may have time to be digested and absorbed.

* * *

But,—if it takes twice or three times that period the food spoils in passing, and becomes as poisonous as if it had decayed before being eaten.

Now, the cause of delay (Constipation) is simply Weakness, or Laziness of the Bowel-Muscles.

Want of Exercise, Indoor Employment, weakens these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg Muscles.

* * *

"Physic" like Salts, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Soda, Mineral Waters, simply flush-out the Bowels for the one occasion only.

They do not remove the Cause of Constipation.

But this is different with Cascarets.

Cascarets act on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines. They act just as Cold Water, or Exercise act on a Lazy man.

They act like exercise.

A Cascaret produces the same sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce.

HOW GRAFT IS EARNED, BY ONE WHO GOT SOME

Politician Tells How "Faithful" City and State Officials Are Rewarded.

"LUCKY" ONES BACK TRUST

Fearing that developments which may follow the confession of Superintendent George H. Dresser of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company that the company has for years provided for friends of politicians whom the Telephone Trust used in matters of Legislation may implicate them in serious difficulties, many senators, members of the House of Representatives, aldermen and councilmen, are vigorously denying that they ever accepted the opportunity afforded by the trust for them to graft.

Despite their denials though, they will figure when District Attorney Moran begins his investigation, as their names and the amounts of money they have received are on documents in possession of the Telephone company.

The AMERICAN to-day presents the story of a man who took advantage of the privilege given one of his friends, a politician, by the telephone company and got a job.

Politician, Qualification.

Here is his story:

"To procure a position as sub-foreman in the engineering department of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company you must be a prominent factor in ward politics. You must work tooth and nail for a politician who is friendly with the Telephone Trust's legislative agent, who has an office on Washington street, directly opposite the headquarters of the Democratic City Committee.

"A friend of mine was elected to the Legislature, and soon after he had seen the legislative agent he told me that he would reward me for my work during his campaign with a good job in the employ of the telephone company.

"I agreed that I would like it, and he telephoned Mr. Dresser saying that he would be down to see him with a constituent for whom he was anxious to secure employment.

"While we sat awaiting an opportunity to see Mr. Dresser he was talking with a member of the Board of Aldermen and a Common Councilman. Soon they came out, and the Councilman held in his hand a slip of paper, on which was written:

"'Foreman ——:

'Put bearer to work as sub-foreman.

'GEORGE H. DRESSER.'

"My friend, the legislator, was ushered into the presence of Mr. Dresser and explained to him that he wanted a job for me.

"'I will put him to work at once and keep him there until you violate your promise to vote for all legislation desired by the Telephone and Telegraph Company,' Mr. Dresser told him.

Jobs and Money.

"The legislator promised again that he would be faithful to the trust, and when he came from Mr. Dresser's office he not only had the job for me but had several tickets, each good for one job for a laborer and assurances that Mr. Dresser would provide for three more of his friends.

"My friend was also promised that if he looked after the interests of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company funds would be provided for his next campaign.

"The job I was given was at Augusta, Me. My Legislator friend gave me a slip on which was written:

"'Foreman—Augusta, Maine:

'Put bearer to work as sub-foreman. Board and room included in salary.

'GEORGE H. DRESSER.'

"I did not feel that I could leave my family and go to Augusta, and told my friend so, but when he explained to me that I would not only get $2.75 a day but would also be allowed $6 a week for board and lodging and would be paid for full time while away from Boston, I decided to accept. Then the manager of the employment office gave me an order for money for railroad transportation which I cashed and then went home to make arrangements for my departure.

"My friend the legislator told me that the reason he could not get a job for me in Boston was that all Boston graft privileges belonged to the members of the Board of Aldermen and Common Council.

"Boston jobs were controlled by Boston city politicians, Mr. Dresser explained, and out of towns jobs were for the friends of State Representatives and Senators.

"Each member of the Board of Aldermen, Mr. Dresser told my friend, is allowed to name fifteen of his friends or constituents for places in the employ of the company."

SAYS HE GAVE 'PHONE GRAFT.

"BARTLETT BANG" NOW AN ISSUE IN CAMPAIGN

Slur Cast at Whitney Eat-fest Stirs Trouble—Josiah Quincy "Godspeeds" the Leaguers.

Democratic leaders and Democratic workers who support the candidacy of General Charles W. Bartlett for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination were inclined to be red hot to-day about what they called the insult thrown at their idol at the Whitney pow-wow at Marblehead yesterday by Congressman John A. Keliher of Boston. These are the Keliher sentiments with which the Bartlett men find fault:

> Our candidate may not excel in wit, but let us remember that not in the history of our State has a joke-maker been elected to the Governorship. It is true, also, that the style of Henry M. Whitney's hair cut may not appeal. (Laughter.) And he is not a gum-chewer. (Applause.)

Former Mayor Barton of Malden was among those who heard Congressman Keliher in the tent on Bessom's Beach at Marblehead. Mr. Barton was annoyed but gratified. "That sort of thing," he said, "which comes from John Keliher with very bad grace, by the way—will not hurt General Bartlett's candidacy. It is in poor taste. If General Bartlett, by reason of what we used to call an uncontrollable 'cow-lick,' is obliged to have his hair cut in a certain style, I don't believe that Democrats generally will feel like making a political issue of it. I came out because Mr. Whitney very politely asked me to. When I was asked to introduce Mr. Whitney to a 'home' audience, not long ago, I said 'certainly; he's a Democrat, and so am I.' And I was the 'original Bartlett man.' Mr. Whitney liked my attitude. He told me about this 'outing of Essex County Democrats,' and asked me to come, as his guest. I did so. And I have had to listen to Keliher."

Called It "Bad Break."

Mr. Barton was not the only Democrat who found fault with the Keliher attack. Many others called it a "bad break."

Some surprise was manifested on Bessom's Beach when former Senator George A. Schofield of Ipswich, Representative Tom Davis of Salem, former Representative Phelan of Lynn and Representative Forristall of Saugus showed up at the merrymaking. Schofield, Davis, Phelan and Forristall are all bona fide Essex County men. They were lost in the crowd of Bostonians. Josiah Quincy was quick to take advantage of their presence. He had Senator Schofield drafted to act as toastmaster. George made a neat little speech, introducing Mr. Whitney, in which he was careful not to say whether he is for Whitney or Bartlett.

The following eminent "Essex County Democrats" were speakers:

HENRY M. WHITNEY of Suffolk County.

JOHN A. KELIHER of Suffolk County.

WILLIAM S. McNARY of Suffolk County.

JOSIAH QUINCY of Suffolk County.

Mr. Whitney made it plain to everybody that the panacea for all the ills from which the body politic is suffering is a revision of tariff schedules and a reciprocal tariff with Canada. Mr. Whitney believes, he said, that this is the one great issue before the people of Massachusetts.

Mr. Whitney is a director in the American Express Company, which owns the largest bundle of Boston & Maine stock. Mr. Whitney is also a director in the Boston & Maine. Mr. Whitney supports, believes in, and defends the merger.

Then Mr. Keliher made his "break" and William S. McNary talked. Josiah Quincy took the stage to apologize for the absence of Essex County speechmakers and talk about the Independence League.

Godspeed to League.

"This is a free country," said Mr. Quincy, becomingly clad in an ice-cold gray, "and if anybody thinks he wants a third political party he is at perfect liberty to form one. There may be room for one. If there are any who think that the principles of the Independence League better represent their political views than do the old principles, I would only say to them 'Go your own way, and Godspeed you.'

"We believe that after all of these have stepped out there will still be enough of us left—with the large body of independent voters and Republicans—to carry our banner to success in November."

These were among the prominent "Essex County" Democrats who went out to Bessom's Beach to scramble for food:

Hon. Joseph A. Conry of Ward 2, Boston (Suffolk County); Hon. Peter F. Tague of Ward [illegible]; Hon. Arthur Harrington of Ward 5; Hon. John A. Keliher; Hon. John A. Sullivan; Hon. Andrew J. Peters; Hon. William S. McNary; Hon. Daniel D. McIsaacs; Alderman John E. Baldwin, Boston; M. P. Curran, secretary to the late Mayor Collins; Major Joseph J. Kelley of Guild's staff; Alderman Fred J. Finigan; City Messenger E. J. Leary; John F. Dever, clerk of (Boston) City Hall committees; Representative William F. Murray of Charlestown, Representative Florence J. Driscoll of Ward 19, Boston (all of Suffolk County); former Representative "Jim" Mellen of Worcester, Representative Duane of Waltham, Senator Macleod of Cambridge and Senator McManmon of Lowell, one of the petitioners for anti-merger legislation.

ALIENISTS FOR HIGH ROCK BARD

LYNN, July 12.—By agreement between the parties interested in the petition now before the Probate Court of Essex County for the appointment of a conservator for the estate of John W. Hutchinson, Dr. George F. Jelly of Boston and Dr. Joseph G. Pinkham of this city have been selected as alienists to examine the bard of High Rock relative to his mental capabilities.

Mrs. Hutchinson is vitally interested in the outcome of the examination for, it has been hinted, that in case the physicians should find Mr. Hutchinson mentally incapable of handling his affairs, and report that he is suffering from an ailment of long standing, an effort will be made to nullify his recent marriage.

FUN AMID RAIN AT WONDERLAND

Usually a rainy day at a big recreation park means a dreary time for the employes. At Wonderland yesterday Assistant Manager Perry provided entertainment for the several hundred employes. About 4 o'clock all were invited to assemble in the theatre in which the "Under the Sea" exhibition is given.

Lecturer John Washburn was master of ceremonies and Lawrence B. O'Connor presided at the piano. The Bellatzer sisters, the Todd-Judge trio, Clarence Hamilton, the chute's roller skater; Mazzeto and Woulfe, General Manager John J. Higgins, Managing Director Major Thomas D. Barroll, Cashier Richard W. Spaulding, Publicity Manager Hugh P. McNally and the heads of all the departments occupied the front seats at the professional matinee.

Bert Letter showed how easy it was to get out of handcuffs; Eugene and Margaret Fielding, Alma Beaumont, Dora Tracey and Grace Lindsey gave a fascinating exhibition of swimming, and George Steadman, Lawrence B. O'Connor and several others contributed musical selections.

REID SOCIALLY SNUBS WYNNE

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Robert Bacon, the acting Secretary of State, denied officially to-day that Robert J. Wynne, the American Consul-General at London, is to be recalled and that there is a breach socially between Ambassador Reid and Wynne. He said he knew nothing about the matter.

Reid has openly snubbed Wynne on several occasions.

While the officials may be in complete ignorance of the lack of social intercourse between the American Embassy at London and Consul-General Wynne, the unpopularity of the embassy and the popularity of the consulate with Americans in London are spoken of by American travelers who have visited the British capital during the last year or two.

They declare that at the American Consulate Americans are always welcome, but at the embassy it is virtually impossible for them to gain an entrance.

Correct Dress for Men

A summer suit sale with a difference.

The difference is that they are Richardson suits—soft, bright, summery fabrics, each one as exclusive and interesting as you will find at the best tailor's, a few garments only from each piece, the matchless tailoring of Alfred Benjamin & Co.

The Vacation Ideal

Peaceful the hills and vales and pure the lakes and streams with which charming New Hampshire has been so lavishly endowed.

What with her Winnepesaukee, Sunapee, Newfound and 'Squam lakes, and her Merrimack and Connecticut rivers and valleys—not to enumerate the lesser water surfaces—there is an ever changing variety of scene and diversified forms of vacation amusement to be found nowhere else in the world.

When the bathing, yachting and deep sea fishing at the shore has tired; when the ascent of the mountains has been made and the grandeur of their scenery absorbed—then—then go to these famous inland waters, where there's peace and quiet and rest that's ever welcome and never palls.

BOOK I.

CHAPTER I.

Kingston Brooks's Visitor

KINGSTON BROOKS was twenty-five years old, strong, nervous, and with a strenuous desire to make his way, so far as was humbly possible, into the heart of life.

He was a young solicitor recently established in Medchester, without friends save those he was now making, and absolutely without interest of any sort. He had a small capital, and already the beginnings of a practice. He had some sort of a reputation as a speaker, and was well spoken of by those who had entrusted business to him. Yet he was still fighting for a living when this piece of luck had befallen him.

Mr. Bullsom, an opulent gentleman, of Medchester, had entrusted a small case to him and found him capable and cheap. Among that worthy gentleman's chief characteristics was a decided weakness for patronizing younger and less successful men, and he went everywhere with Kingston Brooks's name on his lips.

Then came the election and the sudden illness of Mr. Morrison, who had always acted as agent for the radical candidates for the borough.

Another agent had to be found. Several who would have been suitable were unavailable. An urgent committee meeting was held, and Mr. Bullsom at once called attention to an excellent little speech of Kingston Brooks at a ward meeting on the previous night.

In an hour he was closeted with the young lawyer and the affair was settled. Brooks knew that henceforth the material side of his career would be comparatively easy sailing.

Good Fortune

He had accepted his good fortune with something of the same cheerful philosophy with which he had seen difficulty loom up in his path a few months ago. But to-night, on his way home from Mr. Bullsom's suburban residence, a different mood possessed him.

Usually a self-contained and somewhat gravely minded person, to-night the blood went tingling through his veins with a new and unaccustomed warmth.

He carried himself blithely and the cool night air was so grateful and sweet to him that he had no mind even to smoke. There seemed to be no tangible reason for the change. The political excitement, which a few weeks ago he had begun to feel exhilarating, had for him decreased now that his share in it lay behind the scenes, and he found himself wholly occupied with the purely routine work of the election.

Nor was there any sufficient explanation to be found in the entertainment which he had felt himself bound to accept at Mr. Bullsom's hands. Of the wine, which had been only tolerable, he had drunk, as was his custom, sparingly.

Mary Scott, Mr. Bullsom's niece, had certainly interested him in a manner which the rest of the family—Mrs. Peter Bullsom, stout, shiny in black silk, and a chatelaine, and the two daughters, Louise and Selina—had not.

Louise, the elder, whose budding resemblance to her mother was already a protection against the over-amorous youths of the town, was reading a political speech in the Times and Selina, who had sandy hair and a slight figure, was considered by her family the essence of refinement.

He had after all seen but very little. He found himself thinking with fervor of the desirable things in life. Never had the various tasks which he had set himself seemed so easy of accomplishment, his own powers more real and alive.

And beneath it all he was conscious of a vague sense of excitement, a nervous dancing of the blood, as though even now the time were at hand when he might find himself in touch with some of the greater forces of life, all of which he intended some day to realize.

It was delightful after all to be young and strong, to be stripped for the race in the morning of life, when every indrawn breath seems sweet with the perfume of beautiful things, and the heart is tuned to music.

Strange Visitor

The fatigue of the day was wholly forgotten. He was surprised inded when he found himself in the little street where his rooms were.

A small brougham was standing at the corner, the liveries and horse of which, though quiet enough, caused him a moment's surprise as being superior to the ordinary equipages of the neighborhood. He passed on to the sober-fronted house where he lived, and, going in, made his way to his study.

Immediately on entering he was conscious of a man comfortably seated in his easy chair, and apparently engrossed in a magazine.

He advanced toward him inquiringly, and his visitor, carefully laying aside the magazine, rose slowly to his feet.

The young man's surprise at finding his rooms occupied was increased by the appearance of his visitor. He was apparently of more than middle age, with deeply lined face, tall, and with an expression the coldness of which was only slightly mitigated by a sensitive mouth that seemed at once cynical and humorous. He was of more than ordinary height, and dressed in the plainest dinner garb of the day, but his dinner jacket, his black tie, and the set of his shirt were revelations to Brooks, who dealt only with the Medchester tradespeople. He did not hold out his hand, but he eyed Brooks with a sort of critical survey, which the latter found a little disconcerting.

"You wished to see me, sir?" Brooks asked. "My name is Kingston Brooks and these are my rooms."

"So I understood," the newcomer replied imperturbably. "I called about an hour ago and took the liberty of awaiting your return."

Explanations

Brooks sat down. His vis-a-vis was calmly selecting a cigarette from a capacious case. Brooks found himself offering a light and accepting a cigarette himself, the flavor of which he at once appreciated.

"Can I offer you a whiskey and soda?" he inquired.

"I thank you, no," was the quiet reply.

There was a short pause.

"You wished to see me on some business connected with the election, no doubt?" Brooks suggested.

His visitor shook his head slowly. He knocked the ash from his cigarette and smiled whimsically.

"My dear fellow," he said, "I haven't the least idea why I came to see you this evening."

Brooks felt that he had a right to be puzzled, and he looked it. But his visitor was so evidently a gentleman and a person of account that the obvious rejoinder did not occur to him. He merely waited with uplifted eyebrows.

"Not the least idea," his visitor repeated, still smiling. "But at the same time I fancy that before I leave you I shall find myself explaining, or endeavoring to explain, not why I am here, but why I have not visited you before. What do you think of that?"

"I find it," Brooks answered, "enigmatic but interesting."

"Exactly. Well, I hate talking, so my explanation will not be a tedious one. Your name is Kingston Brooks."

"Yes."

"Your mother's name was Dorothy Kenneir. She was, before her marriage, the matron of a home in the East End of London, and a lady devoted to philanthropic work. Your father was a police court missionary."

Still a Mystery

Brooks was leaning a little forward in his chair. These things were true enough. Who was his visitor?

"Your father, through overdevotion to the philanthropic works in which he was engaged, lost his reason temporarily, and on his partial recovery I understand that the doctors considered him still to be mentally in a very weak state. They ordered him to take a sea voyage. He left England on the Corinthia fifteen years ago, and I believe that you heard nothing more of him until you received the news of his death—probably ten years back."

"Yes! Ten years ago."

"Your mother, I think, lived for only a few months after your father left England. You found a guardian in Mr. Ascough of Lincoln's Inn Fields. There my knowledge of your history ceases."

"How do you know these things?" Brooks asked.

"I was with your father when he died. It was I who wrote to you and sent his effects to England."

"You were there—in Canada?"

"Yes. I had a dwelling within a dozen miles of where your father had built his hut by the side of the great lake. He was the only other Englishman within a hundred miles. So I was with him often."

"It is wonderful—after all these years," Brooks exclaimed. "You were there for sport, of course?"

"For sport!" his visitor repeated in a colorless tone.

"But my father—what led him there? Why did he cut himself off from every one, send no word home, creep away into that lone country to die by himself? It is horrible to think of."

"Your father was not a communicative man. He spoke of his illness. I always considered him as a person mentally shattered. He spent his days alone, looking out across the lake or wandering in the woods. He had no companions, of course, but there were always animals around him. He had the look of a man who had suffered."

Sad Memories

"He was to have gone to Australia," Brooks said. "It was from there that we expected news of him. I cannot see what possible reason he had for changing his plans. There was no mystery about his life in London. It was one splendid record of self-denial and devotion to what he thought his duty."

"From what he told me," his vis-a-vis continued, handing again his cigarette case and looking steadily into the fire, "he seems to have left England with the secret determination never to return. But why I do not know.

"One thing is certain—his mental state was not altogether healthy. His desire for solitude was almost a passion. Toward the end, however, his mind was clear enough. He told me about your mother and you, and he handed me all the papers, which I subsequently sent to London. He spoke of no trouble, and his transition was quite peaceful."

"It was a cruel ending," Brooks said quietly. "There were people in London whom he had befriended who would have worked their passage out and faced any hardships to be with him. And my mother, notwithstanding his desertion, believed in him to the last."

There was a moment's intense silence. This visitor who had come so strangely was to all appearance a man not easily to be moved. Yet Brooks fancied that the long white fingers were trembling, and that the strange quiet of his features was one of intense self-repression. His tone when he spoke again, however, was clear, and almost indifferent.

"Tongue-Tied"

"I feel," he said, "that it would have been only decently courteous of me to have sought you out before, although I have, as you see, nothing whatever to add to the communications I sent you. But I have not been a very long time in England, and I have a very evil habit of putting off things concerning which there is no urgency. I called at Ascough's and learned that you were in practice at Medchester. I am now living for a short time not far from here, and reading of the election, I drove in to-night to attend one of the meetings—I scarcely cared which. I heard your name, saw you on the platform, and called here, hoping to find you."

"It was very kind," Brooks said.

He felt curiously tongue-tied. This sudden upheaval of a past which he had never properly understood affected him strangely.

"I gathered from Mr. Ascough that you were left sufficient means to pay for your education, and also to start you in life," his visitor continued. "Yours is considered to be an overcrowded profession, but I am glad to understand that you seem likely to make your way."

Brooks thanked him absently.

"From your position on the platform to-night I gather that you are a politician?"

"Scarcely that," Brooks answered. "I was fortunate enough to be appointed agent to Mr. Henslow owing to the illness of another man. It will help me in my profession."

The visitor rose to his feet. He stood with his hands behind him, looking at the younger man. And Brooks suddenly remembered that he did not even know his name.

"You will forgive me," he said, also rising, "if I have seemed a little dazed. I am very grateful to you for coming. I have always wanted more than anything in the world to meet some one who saw my father after he left England. There is so much that even now seems mysterious with regard to his disappearance from the world."

"I fear that you will never discover more than you have done from me," was the quiet reply. "Your father had been living for years in profound solitude when I found him. Frankly, I considered from the first that his mind was unhinged. Therein I fancy lies the whole explanation of his silence and his voluntary disappearance. I am assuming, of course, that there was nothing in England to make his absence desirable."

"There was nothing," Brooks declared with conviction. "That I can personally vouch for. His life as a police court missionary was the life of a militant martyr's, the life of a saint. The urgent advice of his physicians alone led him to embark upon that voyage; I see now that it was a mistake. He left before he had sufficiently recovered to be safely trusted alone. By the bye," Brooks continued, after a moment's hesitation, "you have not told me your name, whom I have to thank for this kindness. Your letters from Canada were not signed."

There was a short silence. From outside came the sound of the pawing of horses' feet and the jingling of harness.

"I was a fellow-traveler in that great unpeopled world," the visitors said, "and there was nothing but common humanity in anything I did. I lived out there as Philip Ferringshaw, here I have to add my title, the Marquis of Arranmore. I was a younger son in those days. If there is anything which I have forgotten, I am at Enton for a month or so. It is an easy walk from Medchester, if your clients can spare you for an afternoon. Good-night, Mr. Brooks."

He held out his hand. He was sleepy apparently, for his voice had become almost a drawl, and he stifled a yawn as he passed along the little passage. Kingston Brooks returned to his little room, and threw himself back into his easy chair. Truly this had been a wonderful day.

Greater Boston's Brightest Baby Wins Choice $500 Building Lot

Write Out the "Cutest" Thing Your Baby Ever Said and Try for It

YOUTHFUL Mark Twains and embryo Newtons of Greater Boston are daily adding their mite of wit or philosophy to the store gathered in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S Bright Sayings Contest.

And, by the way, it's well to call attention of parents once more that this competition for a choice $500 building lot at Wellington Hillside is but one feature of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S Pretty Baby Contest, which closes next Sunday.

Bright Sayings will be received for two weeks to come, but the last of the Pretty Baby Pictures must be received before Sunday. No photograph will be received later than midnight to-morrow night.

There is still time, if your baby's photo is not yet entered.

A NATURAL SUPPOSITION

My little four-year-old son's real name is Howard, but his middle name being Barrell we call him Sugar-Barrell and the name seems to fit him.

He had made a very thoughtful reply to the time-honored question, "What are you going to be when you grow up?" and we were constantly asking him to repeat it.

He dislikes "showing off," and he even got tired of answering the question and became saucy, and so we left off asking him and asked our friends to do the same.

One day an automobile became stalled in front of our house and while the gentlemen labored to get it under way again I entertained the ladies on my veranda. One of them, the prettiest and liveliest girl I ever saw, spied Sugar-Barrell peacefully watching them from his corner and immediately pounced upon him and put him through the usual catechism.

"What was his name? Age? Was he a good little boy? etc., until just as I feared she would she reached the fatal question, 'And what will you be when you grow up?'"

"A man, I guess," he replied in a tone of disgust.

CAN'T BLAME US

Four-year-old Howard and his brother had for a playmate a little girl slightly older than either of them who was very sweet and lovable with but one fault—that of tale-bearing.

She had been a member of the Sunday School and my children were not, so one day she was explaining the lesson to them.

It was about Moses receiving the tables of the law, and she told it very well indeed.

"And I know," she would speak up boastfully, "I know who broke the tables of stone." Howard surveyed her with immense contempt.

"You're always trying to blame everything on to us," he said, "but you can't say we broke 'em."

A DOWNRIGHT PIANO

A HEAVY shower came on, stopping suddenly. Clarence, aged five, who had been listening attentively to the rain, cried: "Oh they shut it off."

"Who did?" I inquired.

"God," he replied.

One day he had a picture of a piano. "It is an upright," I told him. We have a square piano.

Looking at the picture, he exclaimed: "Well, if this is an upright, ours must be a downright."

NOT EASILY INFLUENCED.

WHEN three-year-old Minot was sick he was requested several times to take certain medicines, each time being assured that they were nice and would "taste good."

But although this was true, he did not like to swallow the strange mixture. When lime water was prescribed his papa thought to save coaxing it would be better to silently pour a little in Minot's drinking water.

He attempted to do so, but Minot detected him in the act. The little chap raised up in his crib and, looking sternly at his father, said politely but decidedly: "Papa, please do not put any 'taste good' in my water."

STILL HIS PAPA

WHILE reading the paper the other morning I was interrupted by my four-year-old son, who came up to me and said: "Say, pa, if I die, I would go up to Heaven to live with God, but you would be my pa just the same, and if I flew down to you would you get me a cup of tea?"

DIDN'T KNOW HIMSELF

When Lawrence was nearly three years old his first woolen suit in sailor blouse style was tried on him. He went to look at himself in a long mirror and exclaimed:

"I don't know who I are?"

WHY NOT MOVE

ONE day, while my little cousin Iola, three years old, was sitting on her grandmother's lap, she said: "What makes your hair so white?" And grandmother answered: "Because I've been around here so long." Whereupon Iola said: "Why don't you move?"

CUPID ADMIRES GOOD DRESS

ONE would hardly think that such a beautiful passion as love could be influenced by such a sordid affair as dress; yet the fact remains that this is so in many cases.

The neat, tidily dressed woman is admired by all men who know her; they are attracted to her by reason of her artistic skill in dressing. A young man is delighted to be seen in her company, for it enhances his own reputation. Does it not demonstrate that he has good taste in the choice of, say, a sweetheart?

A young fellow does like to see his sweetheart turn up to meet him on an evening neatly garbed; it not only increases respect, but love for her, and if young women will take a word of advice they will always see to it that they are perfect in every detail, so far as dressing goes, before setting out to keep appointments with lovers.

TO GAIN REST IN THE KITCHEN

BE sure to have an easy lounge or chair in the kitchen, where you may spend the few waiting minutes, between acts, as it were, in rest.

If you can't afford to buy a lounge especially for that purpose, make one. This is easily done.

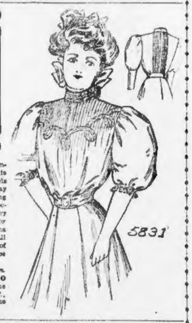
Get two long boxes from the dry goods store; place them end to end and nail together. Make a mattress and fill it with any desired material. Shredded shucks are clean and excellent. Over this drape any kind of cover to suit the fancy.

Be sure to get something that can be washed and ironed. Red and white bed ticking is pretty and desirable, and never fades, and when laundered looks as good as new. Make a pillow to match.

Now, while you are watching the cakes, bread, pies and the like, remember there is your lounge. Rest. Do not say you have no time. You have to wait for your baking to brown. Why not rest while you wait?

The Boston American Pattern

A Dainty Tucked Blouse



No. 5,831—New designs for the popular lingerie blouse are constantly appearing. Here is one that is exceedingly attractive and affords scope for any amount of elaboration; or it may be made up without trimming, fine tucking being a most effective trimming in itself, especially for the sheer linens and batiste. Very charming and dainty effects are obtained by the use of valenciennes and cluny lace. China silk, lawn, mull, organdy and taffeta are all appropriate for reproduction. For a girl of 16 years 2¼ yards of 36-inch material will be required.

No. 5,831—Sizes for 15, 16 and 17 years.

To obtain this pattern, postpaid, send 10 cents, with size, name and address, to the BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass., allowing one week for delivery.

No. 5,831. (July 12, 1907.) SIZE..................

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

TIGHT clothes and indigestion cause red noses.

A hot bath taken at night affords refreshing sleep.

The yolk of an egg broken up in rose water is a trusty shampoo.

A raw egg swallowed will detach a fishbone in the throat.

High-heeled boots are know to cause spinal complaints.

Glycerine and lemon juice in equal proportions whiten the hands.

Sleep with the window well open and you will wake brisk.

Daily exercise with light dumb-bells eventually cures round shoulders.

Mustard plasters made with the white of an egg do not blister the skin.

Apply arnica to a bruise if the skin is unbroken. If broken, wash the bruise and apply vaseline.

REDUCE FLESHY NOSE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Having mislaid the lotion for a fleshy nose I would ask you to please republish it. A. N.

TO make the lotion to which you refer take one-quarter dram of tannic acid, one-half dram of muriate of ammonia, one and a half ounces of rosewater and one ounce of glycerine. Dissolve the ammonia and tannic acid in the glycerine and add the rosewater last. Wet a piece of cotton with the lotion and bind on the nose over night; also bathe it with the lotion frequently during the day.

ENLARGED PORES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you please tell me the cause of enlarged pores? Is that why hairs grow on the face? Can superfluous hairs be removed permanently without injury? Also is there more or less hair on every one's face? VIOLET.

ENLARGED pores are as a rule caused by pimples or blackheads which distend the pores and when removed the pores do not contract again to their normal size. They could not possibly cause a growth of hair on the face. Superfluous hairs can be removed permanently by the electric needle without the least injury to the skin. There is a light down on almost all faces, but it is so soft as only to give the skin a velvety appearance rather than to be noticed as hair. It is this growth that may be stimulated by the use of creams containing lanoline into a good crop of hair.

FOR SHARP NOSE

DEAR PROFESSOR:
I have a sharp hooked nose and want to know if the shape can be changed, and if not how shall I wear my hair to best counteract the effect of this nose on my looks?

DERMATOLOGISTS claim to shorten the nose and shape it correctly, but I think it much wiser in you to dress in such a way as to detract attention from the nose and leave it as your Creator made it. Wear broad and fluffy neckwear, broad-brimmed hats and wear your hair low and fluffed out at the temples. Ruches and soft, feathery boas should be your close companions. Console yourself that your nose is aristocratic, stop being conscious of its shape, and you will not be uncomfortable on account of it.

DEVELOP CALVES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Kindly tell me of something that will develop the calves of the legs and also the ankles. CURLEY.

TAKE the correct standing position, so that you are balanced well on the ball of the foot; rise slowly on your toes until you can go no farther; sink slowly to the floor again and repeat this exercise until the calf actually cramps; shake or kick out the cramps and go at it again. This will develop the muscles of the calf, and is also one of the best remedies for insomnia, as it brings the blood to the extremities and away from the brain. I do not see what you want to develop the ankle for, as a slim ankle is considered a mark of beauty.

ORANGE ICE

ONE cup orange juice, juice of one lemon, one pint water, one cup sugar. Make a syrup by boiling the water and sugar together ten minutes. Cool, add the orange and lemon juice, strain and freeze.

PEACH SHORTCAKE

Two cups sifted pastry flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half pound sugar, four teaspoons baking powder, one-third cup butter and about two-thirds cup of cold milk. Mix and sift ingredients, work in the butter with the tips of the fingers, then add milk gradually, mixing with a knife. Take out onto a floured board, pat into shape, then cut the dough in two pieces. Roll out each half to fit a round or square tin. Put onto your pan one-half and slightly butter the top of it, then put the other half on this. Bake in a hot oven ten minutes. When done, butter the crusts. Cover one-half with a layer of sliced peaches, slightly sweetened. Put on the upper crust and cover this with a layer of peaches or a thick coating of powdered sugar.

M. IRENE O'LOUGHLIN,
No. 46 Winter street, Fitchburg.

BROWN BREAD

ONE cup of Indian meal, one cup of white flour, one cup of graham flour, using measuring cup. Mix dry ingredients together. Add one teaspoon salt, one cup of molasses, one and a half cups of sweet milk, one egg, one teaspoon of saleratus dissolved in one tablespoon of hot water. Mix well and steam three hours.

MRS. C. M. HEWITT,
No. 59 Capitol street, Watertown.

POTTED MEAT

PLACE a cheap piece of beef in a covered bean pot with water enough to cover; put in the oven and cook three or four hours. This makes it tender and very nice.

No. 174 Union street, Lawrence.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

HERE are some of the best values in the shops for to-morrow forenoon:

HENRY SIEGEL CO. will have on sale a special lot of misses' and children's $1.50 canvas shoes for 79 cents. The colors include brown, blue, gray, pink and white. They are slightly soiled, but can be easily made as fresh as new.

JORDAN MARSH CO. will have for you a most seasonable and exceptional bargain in handsome Bavarian China salad or orange sets, consisting of six plates and a bowl—the bowl alone being worth the $1.25 for which you can get the whole $2.50 set Saturday forenoon. The china is delicately tinted and painted with a charmingly delicate floral design and has gold edges. This is a bargain that speaks for itself.

BUTLER'S will let you have 160 of their large size, light-weight $2 dress-suit cases for 98 cents to-morrow forenoon; also 75 pairs men's "Gordon" suspenders for 19 cents a pair, the standard price being 50 cents a pair.

JAMES A. HOUSTON COMPANY offer you, just for the half day, exquisitely dainty $1.25 nightrobes for 69 cents. They have either high or low neck and are lace or Hamburg trimmed; are of a very nice quality of material and full width.

VORENBERG'S will have for a half day's sale imitation cut glass lemonade pitchers, with quadruple plated silver top, and which stand eighteen inches high, regular $2.50 value, for 98 cents. They will also have on sale their lemonade spoons, with long handles, to use with this pitcher, reduced from 25 cents to 19 cents each, or 3 for 45 cents.

R. H. WHITE CO., on the second floor, will have boys' Russian wash suits of Hydegrade Galatea cloth, $1.49 values for 98 cents; also Russian suits of imported English cheviots, chambrays and ginghams, $2.49 values, for $1.49.

A. SHUMAN CO. offer a great bargain in a broken lot of linen and Anderson gingham frocks in Frenchy effects. Some are as high as $14 values, and you can get any of the lot for $2.95 to-morrow forenoon. They also have just 2 dozen Peter Thompson suits, in white and cadet shades, sizes 4 to 10 years, $7.50 values, all for $1.95. They are slightly soiled and mussed from handling.

THE MODEL, on Winter street, offers for Saturday forenoon 17 slightly soiled white muslin and China silk dresses, $15 and $18 values, for $4.75; also 32 trimmed hats at $2.45, each genuine $5, $6 and $7 values.

WOLF'S, "My Cothier," offers $5 white linen suits for $3.98, in good quality material, double-breasted, Prince Chap style, with the coats cut 25 inches in length. Skirt is full flare.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont Temple Store will offer to-morrow for a half day's sale a lot of corset covers trimmed with a pretty pattern lace, both back and front, also ribbon and beading, at the extremely low price of 29 cents each. They are in sizes from 34 to 44.

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. will offer Persian lawn, 45 inches wide, a fine sheer fabric for waists and gowns, worth 25 cents, for 12½ cents; also imported white figured piques in beautiful designs, just the thing for vacation and outing suits, worth 50 cents, for 29 cents a yard.

GILCHRIST CO. will have on sale $1.25 Camille Kimonas in pretty figured lawns for only 69 cents each. They have the button-hole stitched fronts. They are marked to this price just for a half day's sale.

BRINE'S will sell infants' 19-cent cashmere hose, in white only, for 7 cents a pair.

BACON'S Uptown Department Store will have on sale India linon, 40 inches wide, of an extra fine quality, worth 25 cents a yard, for 12½ cents.

MEYER JONASSON & CO. will close out Saturday morning a small lot of covert coats and silk eton and pony coats, all silk lined, reduced from $15 and $12.75 to $5; also a small lot of mixture suits reduced from $25 to $8.90.

$30,000 Blackmail Plot Foiled by Eva Booth

COMMANDER EVA BOOTH

Charged with attempting to blackmail the Salvation Army to the extent of $30,000, Solomon Robitscheck of Lowell is still in a cell at the Charles Street jail, unable to secure $1,000 bail. His attorney, Bennett Silverblatt, accused of the same crime, is out on bonds in the same amount, furnished by his father.

Both defendants are technically charged with using the United States mails with intent to defraud by threatening to publish a poem or song attacking the Army. They were arrested yesterday at Lowell by United States Deputy Marshal C. A. Bancroft and Postoffice Inspector McLeod, and were held in $1,000 by United States Commissioner Hayes in this city.

The Federal authorities are now trying to locate a young woman named Katherine A. Graham, who, it is alleged, is the third one of three people who have endeavored during the last three weeks to sell the copyright of the song, which was written by Robitscheck, to Captain Arthur E. Armstrong, the commanding officer of the Lowell Salvation Army headquarters. Miss Graham escaped and is thought to have taken a train for Canada.

The matter was brought to the attention of the postal authorities in Boston only yesterday by Captain Armstrong, who mailed a copy of the song which had been written by Robitscheck, also letters from the man and Lawyer Silverblatt.

Robitscheck sells second-hand clothing for a living, and between sales writes verse. He had placards printed and was preparing to do a land office business in "driving the Salvation Army from the world." He told Captain Arthur E. Armstrong, head of the organization in Lowell, that that was his purpose.

It was at that time he placed a price of $30,000 on the copyright. Next he sent a copy to New York, addressed to Commander Eva Booth, and this, with the demand for $30,000, fell into the hands of Treasurer Ransom Caygill of the Salvation Army.

The latter at once communicated with the postoffice authorities and was advised to begin correspondence with Robitscheck. It was then that Silverblatt came into the matter, for after Robitscheck and Caygill had exchanged two or three epistles, the matter was turned over to the lawyer.

Inspector McLeod went to Lowell yesterday afternoon, and had no trouble locating Mr. Silverblatt. In the office at the time were Robitscheck and Attorney Silverblatt's father.

Silverblatt at once informed him that if he were ready to sign papers which were already made out for $5000 the matter would be dropped. This was afterward by haggling, cut to $2000. As the bargain was apparently completed Deputy Marshal Bancroft stepped into the room, and placed Silverblatt and Robitscheck under arrest.

ALIENISTS ARE PROTESTED BY EDDY COUNSEL

Fight Against Drs. Jelly and Blumer May be Waged in Supreme Court.

NEXT FRIENDS AROUSED

CONCORD, N. H., July 12.—The legal battle begun here yesterday by counsel for Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy in the suit brought by her son, George W. Glover, and "next friends," against the proposed examination into her competency, formal protest was filed against Drs. George F. Jelly of Boston, and G. Alden Blumer of Providence.

The latter, although he declined to serve stands upon the court records as a co-master with Dr. Jelly and Judge Edgar Aldrich.

The protest is in the form of a bill of exceptions and it is sought to carry the questions raised direct to the Supreme Court. The reasons given are:

"Because the said Jelly and Blumer are non-residents of the State of New Hampshire, and their said appointment was and is contrary to the provisions of the Constitution and laws of this State and the established practice of equity.

"Because, as shown by the commission, by the correspondence on file between Judge Chamberlin and Hon. Edgar Aldrich, and by the acceptance of Dr. Jelly on file in connection with said appointments, Drs. Jelly and Blumer are authorized and expected to render a decision not predicated wholly upon the evidence submitted to them by the parties, but based, in part at least, upon their technical skill and knowledge and their preconceived opinions as expert alienists.

"Because said Drs. Jelly and Blumer are not legally qualified or legally competent to act either as masters or referees in this case."

GIRL BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors but Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we 'phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent (50c.), (in the form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, On Humors of Skin and Scalp.

Prevented from getting at the Cardinals yesterday on account of the rain the Doves will wake things up this afternoon when the jingle sounds for the contest to begin.

The lay off had the effect to give both teams a chance to ease upon the strain both were under in the last series on the card. The Cardinals had the Giants to deal with and got one game out of the four, while the Doves put it on the Reds four out of five times, and the Doves have everything now in their favor to continue its battering in the four scraps with McCloskey's pets.

To-day will be the preliminary to the doubleheader, which comes to-morrow, and is a half holiday attraction which will be one of the biggest entertainments of the summer season.

There will be one absentee on the Cardinals at the first corner, as old "Eagle Eye" Jake Beckley, after a score of years in harness, has disappeared from the ranks of major ball, but he was one of the biggest favorites who ever wore spikes not only in the Hub, but all along the circuit. On the last trip of the Cardinals here Beckley had his hands injured and he never fully recovered so as to be useful to his team.

JUDGES HAD TO POSTPONE "RAIN OR SHINE" MEETING

By EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 12.—Well, it proved that the "rain or shine" meeting at the local track had to submit to the elements after all. Not that the rain was really the whole cause of the postponement when only three heats had been decided, but through an oversight the management forgot to put the condition in the entry blanks sent to the trainers, and the latter had all the best of it when they kicked about racing their horses in the mud and wet.

Of course, the judges have all the power in matters of postponement, and had they wished could have compelled completing the programme, but under the circumstances they concluded the safer way was to wait till to-day before finishing the races started.

There were many who thought considerable of the chances of "Pat" Brady's gelding, Dreamwold Prattler, winning the 2:27 trot, which brought him up to second favorite, Mollie Wilkes being first choice with the talent. A break in the heat caused the Readville product to finish seventh. His next chance comes this afternoon to cop the coin.

"Whitey" Crowley surprised all by taking Mary M. to the front soon in the battle and landing first handily. None were more astonished than her owner, Hugh Morrison, the Boston horseman. She was bred in California and sired by Dexter Prince, out of a mare by Palo Alto, 2:08¾. When through racing she will make a first-class brood mare.

Every starter in the 2:20 pace wore the hopples. The pick was Manila Boy, but he finished the single heat raced in next to last place, C. H. B., Copeland Girl and Thurstrup having a red-hot contest the entire route.

In the 2:24 pace Uncle Dick, Admore and Albutus wore the straps. For the second time in the afternoon Combination Park bore off the honors, as Crowley had little bother in coming first, which caused the delegation representing the Dorchester Driving Club to scream with delight.

R. C. Richardson is the owner of Uncle Dick, and, if he succeeds in pulling off the two necessary heats to-day, will be given the opportunity of visiting the receiving teller at his bank with a good-sized roll of the needful. His driving club friends, too, got a finger in the juicy pie.

Charlie King, owned by A. T. Wheelock of the same driving club, came a good third. He had a couple of hard races in Camden, Me., July 4 and 5, from which he had not fully recovered. However, the heat raced may do him a lot of good, and make him more of a factor before the race has been finished.

Albutus stepped it off to near the half like he was the cheese, but at that point went to a break and danced behind the distance flag.

William Mahoney of Hyde Park came down with the Readville delegation. He tells of a gelding he owns in Trainer Topham's charge at Readville that can give all with the same handling cards and spades, and then win. In just four weeks after seeing the track he has worked in 2:19¼. His name is Bingen Light, by Bingen, dam by Allendorf.

While the rain was coming down in torrents the trainers discussed the feat of Dick Lawrence in getting Roy del Diablo, 2:11¼, to racing without the hopples. In his winning race last week he had on only one harness, and never gave a sign of wanting the leg rigging.

CLEVELAND, July 12.—Manager McGuire has loaned Shortstop Wagner to the Rochester team of the Eastern League. Manager Buckenburger, a personal friend of the Boston chieftain, has a crippled team and Wagner will play either short or first base for him for two weeks or more. He left yesterday afternoon to join the Rochester team. Wagner has just recovered from a spiking he received in Boston. He appeared in a uniform yesterday afternoon for the first time since he was injured and is now in condition to play again.

The Bostonians will play an exhibition game at Sandusky, Ohio, Sunday with the fastest independent team in Ohio. McGuire said last night he would use either Oberlin or Jacobsen in the box, with Armbruster on the receiving end. Grimshaw will play left field in place of Barrett.

Cleveland sporting writers are wondering why Ferris is not moved up higher in the batting order. He has been clouting the ball for fair during the game here, while neither Knight nor Unglaub has been doing any hitting.

McGuire feels the loss of the services of Pitcher Tannehill, who yesterday was suspended for three days by President Johnson for saucing Umpire O'Loughlin Wednesday. The manager had intended using the southpaw against the Naps.

Dr. Castle said last night that Lajoie's injured foot is getting along exceedingly well, and that under favorable conditions the manager might be able to return to the game in a week. The swelling has gone down a great deal and danger from blood poisoning is remote. In the meantime Charles Somers, vice-president of the American League, is acting manager of the team.

GRIFF WON'T QUIT YANKS

NEW YORK, July 12.—"I have not engaged George Stallings to manage the New York Americans next season or any other season," said Frank Farrell, owner of the club, "and have no intention of doing so. Reports that I have are ridiculous and have not the least foundation in fact. I never considered Stallings as a manager for the team; in fact, have not entertained any thought of getting a successor to Griffith. Griffith has served me faithfully by working his hardest for the New York Club's interest, and he has not failed to make good by any means. He has come within an ace of winning the pennant twice, and that is doing pretty well. He has been handicapped by an unusual amount of hard luck in having players injured, and I consider that he is entitled to continued opportunity to try to make a pennant winner of the team.

ELMER COLLINS IN BIG RACE AT REVERE

Elmer Collins, the speedy Lynn pace follower, will be the third man in the motor-paced championship races at the Revere track to-morrow night for the BOSTON AMERICAN championship diamond medal. He will take the place of Hugh McLean in the contest, the latter having already ridden more races in the series thus far than the others, and by his staying out of the Saturday night events it will even up matters.

Collins will have an excellent chance in the events, for the distances being short, five, ten and fifteen miles, he will be able to make the others fairly fly, for the boy is exceptionally strong at the short distance paced game.

Yesterday afternoon he trained in company with Moran and Walthour, who will be his opponents and the trio rode so fast in their workouts that it was made plain that the man who wins the events on Saturday night will have to ride in close to record time.

Owing to the fact that the pole man in a race has an advantage, particularly in a short contest, it was decided yesterday to even up matters. There will be three heats and the men will draw lots to see which heat they will have the pole in. The same method of procedure will be gone through for second and third positions. The method will give each pole man a chance to win his heat if he is fast enough, and at the same time prevent a man complaining afterward that he would have won had he not had hard luck in the drawing for positions.

There will also be two amateur events, and in addition to the local riders there is a large number of riders from New York who are on hand for the events.

JOHN L. MEETS KILRAIN JULY 22

Those two old-timers, Jake Kilrain and John L. Sullivan, have arranged to meet again. Frank Hall, manager of John L., has got the sanction of the Mayor of Chicago for a four-round bout between the veteran gladiators July 22. They will meet for a purse of $1,000.

166 Mile Auto Ride from Toledo to South Bend Proves a Hoodoo

THREE INJURED ON GLIDDEN RUN

By J. C. KERRISON.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 12.—This morning the sun shone bright and clear for the motorists who are looking forward to a comparatively easy run of 101 miles to Chicago. The roads never of the best, will unquestionably be an improvement on those of yesterday, which proved so disastrous to many of the travellers in the tour. Another day, such as yesterday and a majority of the men will be ready to let the run and the trophy go to smash, as they threatened to do at the conclusion of the run a year ago.

The brightness of the morning had a cheering effect upon the tourists as a whole, still there is no end of grumbling at the way things are going. The mileage to Chicago has, through the in route, been increased some twenty miles, and yet but little added time in the schedule has been given, the schedule being a six and one-quarter one, that, too, despite the fact that the cars are forced to cross twenty-nine railroad tracks in going into the Windy City.

White Car First Away.

There was little haste in checking out this morning, H. K. Sheridan, in a White car, being the first away. Then came Shultz in a Merion runabout, and Sheppy and Walter White, both in White steamers. It was after 9 o'clock, central, 10 o'clock Eastern time, before the last car had been checked out.

Three persons are to-day confined to hospitals, as a result of serious injuries received during the 166-mile run of the Glidden tour, from Toledo to this city yesterday. Kenneth R. Otis and Miss Harriet Rawlins, both of Cleveland, are in the Toledo Hospital, while T. J. Clarke of Chicago is confined at Bryan.

That all three were not killed seems almost miraculous. The former two, together with Mr. Otis, F. Ed Spooner and Machinist Jim Noonan, were passengers in Mr. Otis's six-cylinder car. When less than five miles out of Toledo, Mr. Otis signalled for the road to his friend, Phillip Flynn of Pittsburg. The latter pulled to one side and in going by the left wheel of Mr. Otis's car skidded, struck a deep rut, and turned the car completely over, throwing the passengers in every direction. Mr. Otis was thrown beneath it, his feet projecting on one side and his head on the other. Miss Rawlins was thrown directly in front and the radiator rested on the back of her head, her face being imbedded in the deep, slimy mud. Mr. Otis, Spooner and Noonan were thrown three different ways, but none of them was injured.

As soon as possible after the accident the Flynn car was stopped, and Mr. and Mrs. Flynn ran to the aid of the injured. Mr. Otis directed them as to just what to do, and with their hands they dug the mud from around the mouth and nostrils of Miss Rawlins, so that her breathing would not be hampered. The car was lifted bodily from the head of Miss Rawlins, who was hastened to a hospital in one of the cars that had come up. Her scalp was cut, but no serious injury was experienced.

Mr. Otis was the last to be taken from the wreck and an inspection showed nothing more serious than severe laceration of the lower limbs. Neither was injured internally.

The second accident happened a few miles east of Bryan, when the car entered and driven by T. J. Clarke of Chicago, skidded in a high bank at the turn, rolled over the ditch, and turned bottom side up, and then over on one side. Mr. Clarke was injured. He was badly cut around the face and mouth and injured in the chest. The Red Cross car, containing Doctors Williams and Callahan, took Mr. Clarke to the Christman Hotel at Bryan. A telephone message from Bryan, this morning, reports Mr. Clarke as resting well. It is not thought by the doctors that the internal chest injuries will develop complications. There was a rib fracture. A specialist was called from Chicago and reached Bryan late last evening.

Steering Wheel Broken.

Besides Mr. Clarke, the car contained E. W. McGookin of Chicago, Peter R. Fehey of Cleveland and George Hunt. All of these escaped uninjured. The car was righted and put on the road. The steering wheel was broken, but Mr. Hunt drove the car into South Bend. At Brimfield, the car was run over and hung on the edge of a high bridge at a right angle turn, it having been impossible to make the turn with the broken wheel. After it was pulled off the bridge, it was driven into South Bend, and will continue to Chicago to-morrow, driven by Mr. Hunt, where it will be re-tired.

Yesterday's run was unquestionably one of the hardest day's run that has ever been experienced in this country. In fact, outside of the Pittsburg run of 1902 and the recent Albany endurance contest, no such conditions have ever prevailed. While it is true, that during the mud run to Pittsburg great hardships were experienced, it raining throughout the trip, there was no such thing as a schedule to go up against. And such a schedule as it was—166 miles in nine hours—166 miles of the hardest kind of hard going.

Schedule Demanded Racing.

The schedule yesterday really demanded racing, although, that would have been quite ample for the distance, had the weather and road conditions been more propitious.

It was really this condition of affairs, which was responsible for the accidents to the Otis and the Smith parties, as both cars could have made the turns with safety, had it not been for the slimy condition of the roadway. There were many narrow escapes from injury. The big cars plowed through the hard places, and then tried to make time by pushing along the fine stretches, jumping the numerous water holes and sliding from side to side of the road, coming dangerously near sliding into ditches or down precipices, which abounded on every hand.

N. H. Van Sicklen, one of the most enthusiastic of tourists, is through with the run, his car having broken a bearing in its jack shaft, losing the base of its magnets, and being 25 minutes late.

Mr. Parker of New York also announced his retirement, as the pace is too hot, he having joined the tour for pleasure and not for racing purposes.

R. G. Kelsey, in the Matheson car, twice went into a ditch, once to save hitting a boy and the second time by a skid.

Howard, in an Oldsmobile, likewise connected with the side of the road.

The Welch car had troubles, resultant of its accident of the previous day.

The car of the chairman of the committee frightened a horse driven by a woman and another contestant smashed a buggy behind a runaway. No other damage.

The Pungs-Finch car, driven by E. B. Finch, did not reach here until early this morning.

The report of the committee shows that three clubs, viz., the Westchester, Buffalo and Pittsburg club were tied for the leading honors in the Glidden, the Chicago club having received a penalization of 25, 2-7 points; Cleveland 124, 1-9; New York Motor Club, 13 1-5; Detroit, 4; Automobile club of America, 3¾ points.

The cars penalized and points were: N. H. Van Sicklen, 23; J. T. Clark, 6; K. R. Otis, 111 1-9; A. L. Peterson, 117; Mrs. Cuneo, 4; J. W. Mears, 108; H. T. Thomas, 22; R. D. Chapin, 1; O. A Parker, 6; R. M. Owen, 1; G. A. Weidely, 40.

Lucius Tyler of Boston came through with the Maxwell in good style and up to date has a clean score.

TOMMY QUILL IN FINE FETTLE FOR BOUT TO-NIGHT

Tommy Quill, the Brockton strong boy, originally from County Cork, town of Macroom, will warm his mitts with Eddie Lenney of New York at the Lymansville A. C., R. I., club to-night in a fifteen round bout, and the fans will see a ring dual between a couple of slashing lightweights who are fighters, not boxers.

Quill is too well known in New England as a coming champion in his class to be introduced to the ring followers. His defeat of Dave Deshler and quick disposal of Young Kenney of Lawrence are easily remembered.

When Quill gets in the ring there is business on tap, and Providence fans know that from seeing him in the past.

Eddie Lenney is just the boy to worry Quill, having been up against the best in the game. He has fought twenty-round draws with Joe Tipman of Baltimore, Austin Rice and Tim Callahan, the Quaker, besides two twelve-round bouts with Kid Goodman in Boston. He has met "Young Corbett," Chick Tucker, Benny Yanger and Young Erne in six-round, no decision bouts and was never worsted. Such a record leaves no doubt of his ability as a fighter, and he has better experience than Quill in having met boys with greater reputations.

There is a fine card of preliminaries on the bill between local boys, which will be for blood.

Will Mr. Roosevelt Kindly Build the Canal?

This Japanese War Scare Ought to Create Some Impression

With the talk of sending our entire fleet of battleships around South America to the Pacific Ocean, and with the talk of war with Japan, the American people are compelled to think very seriously about the Panama Canal AND THE SHAMEFUL LACK OF ABILITY, INTELLIGENCE AND REAL INTEREST THUS FAR DISPLAYED IN THAT ENTERPRISE.

To begin with, the Panama scheme was dishonest, and anybody who cares to investigate the matter can't help knowing that. The natural, simple route was the Nicaragua route. But THERE WERE PANAMA SECURITIES TO BE BOUGHT AND SOLD AGAIN BY CUNNING WALL STREET MEN. Some of our financial gentlemen who control Washington bought up the claims of the Panama stockholders for a few millions AND THEY SOLD THAT MESS OF WASTE PAPER TO THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT FOR FORTY MILLIONS.

Thus the Panama Canal scheme was begun in the good American Wall Street way BY STEALING TWENTY OR MORE MILLIONS OUTRIGHT FROM THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

That was bad enough, but things have been worse since.

Instead of digging the Canal, instead of going at the matter in a businesslike, serious way, the national Government at Washington has played politics and played favoritism from the start.

One after another, the intimate, personal friends of Mr. Roosevelt have gone down to take charge of the matter, ONLY TO COME BACK AND BE HIRED AT LARGE SALARIES BY MR. RYAN, OR TO BE DENOUNCED IF THEY DIDN'T HAPPEN TO PLEASE MR. RYAN. Mr. Roosevelt himself made a theatrical, childish excursion to the Isthmus, had himself photographed ashore, afloat, on a steam dredge, in a white suit, a black suit, a straw hat, AND THEN CAME HOME AGAIN.

The photographs were very satisfactory, and they were widely published. But that didn't do much to dig the Canal.

How soon will Mr. Roosevelt put some of the energy that goes into photographs into the work of digging that Canal? How soon will he devote his attention to the matter which may be of vital importance to this nation, and devote less attention to the number of babies in the family of an American citizen or an American rabbit?

If Mr. Roosevelt would leave the animal writers to attend to the business for which they are paid, and if he would kindly attend to the business for which HE is paid, the people would be very grateful to him.

There is no question that a great number of the people admire him intensely and can't get enough of his photographs. But the time is coming—and will come the moment this nation meets with any serious difficulties—when the people will wish that they had a President better able to work, and less fond of advising others, a President of less value to the photographer and more value to the ordinary citizen.

English Heads Getting Smaller?

Certainly. But the Bodies Are Getting Bigger—That's Some Comfort.

Statistics show that the heads of Englishmen are smaller, proportionately, than they were. It isn't hard to believe this. In the body of a human being there is only a certain amount of vitality. "The blood is the life." If the blood is used in the muscles that play cricket or football, it can't build up the brain and make the head bigger.

If, on the other hand, the blood goes to the brain and is used there, as human beings should use their vitality, for thought and intellectual construction, the muscles can't grow quite so fast.

The average prosperous Englishman of to-day is a gentleman who delights in playing cricket at fifty or sixty, and in riding across country at seventy. His son is apt to be a very nice specimen across the shoulders; he can't expect to be quite so good a specimen across the forehead. What the forehead gains, the biceps and the calves of the legs must lose, in part at least. Where the muscles gain too much, the brain must make the sacrifice. If you pick out the Englishmen that amount to something and represent their race well, men like Kipling and Morley, you will not find the head getting smaller. But you will not find either large, swelling muscles, or a very good cricket score.

The time for building up the body is in youth, boyhood. Later years should be devoted to the brain, with only just enough exercise to keep the brain healthy. Englishmen, no matter how old, are only happy when they get white flannel on their legs, some kind of a pretty little cap on their heads, and start out to do some sort of exercising that a monkey could do forty times better.

There are certain kinds of heads in England that are smaller for very good reasons, apart from exaggerated athletics, and that smallness should be a warning to this country.

The shameful CHILD LABOR of England dwarfs the bodies and the brains at the same time. The English have now passed stringent laws, and they protect their children there against child slavery AS WE DO NOT PROTECT THEM IN THIS COUNTRY. But in England the action has come late, and it will take a long time to live down the evil results of the child labor, THE INDUSTRIAL CHILD MURDER, that preceded the present good laws.

The effort to get soldiers for the army in England proves that the race has deteriorated, and this is due to the fact that the men of to-day were children in the mills or descendants of men that had been children in mills or mines.

The industrial child slave cannot grow properly in body or in brain. And the descendants of child labor in England are small in the head and small in the chest now, AS MANY HUNDREDS AND THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS TO COME WILL BE SMALL IN THE HEAD AND SMALL IN THE BODY, SMALL IN BRAIN, HEART AND LUNGS, IF WE ALLOW OUR PRESENT SHAMEFUL CHILD LABOR SYSTEM TO GO ON.

CURIOUSLY enough "yellow" is not the color of the "tainted news" which lately bought space in editorial columns. Some of these "tainted journals" have long rung the changes on "yellow journalism." Yellow is several shades brighter and cleaner than black.

* * *

As to the ethics of journalism: the light of a clean and properly conceived publicity is a potent curative agent for many of the worst ills of the body politic.

* * *

Do you expect to see the absolute truth on a billboard? Whenever the truth is there it is discounted by its location. There is no inherent antagonism between the billboard and the truth, but in the search for truth the billboard is snubbed. The ethical trouble with the billboard is that it has space to let for a lie. Hence when some fake wants to advertise to the best advantage it buys editorial opinion where it is for sale and thus seeks to disguise the advertisement—seeks to sail under false colors. And every gun should be loaded for that kind of sailors.

* * *

Aside from his immorality the cheek of a thief is one of his most disgusting features. This fact is made prominent at the baseball games, both by the gamblers and the ball thieves. The efforts now being made to prevent these games from becoming the rendezvous of blacklegs cannot be too highly praised. Captain Tenney is to be commended by all honest men for his efforts to prevent the South End grounds from becoming a school in stealing, and his contention that balls falling within the bleachers be returned to their rightful owners is simply right.

That One Little Girl

By Wex Jones

OUT with good fellows, how time flashes by,
Borne on the wings of the drink and the song.
"Let us live while we live," is the echoing cry;
"When we're dead we'll be dead ones so terribly long."
The day is for dullards; for good fellows night,
When the table is spread and the corks are a-popping,
And mirth rises high and wit sparkles bright,
And the racket runs loud and there's no one for stopping.

But when morning has dawned and the roysterers fled,
Away from the dazzle and out of the swirl—
Oh, the ashes of folly!—mirth's roses droop dead,
And we always come back to the one little girl.

AWAY and away on the far-leading road,
Away and away o'er the world-circling blue,
Away and away, with adventure the goad,
Strange harbors and cities and countries to view.
Ah! This is the life for the man of red blood—
What is home, what is country, what sweetheart or friend,
As onward and on, over mountain and flood,
We follow the rainbow and seek the earth's end!

But some day we tire of the road and the pack,
The roll of the ocean, the far cities' whirl;
Our hearts cease to sing and our long thoughts swing back,
And we always return to the one little girl.

Why and Wherefore

United States and Europe

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

In my presence not long ago the remark was made by an American friend that the territory of the United States was greater than that of Europe. I disputed him. If I am wrong I am willing to be put right. Please give the facts and oblige.

AUSTRIAN.

[The area of Europe is 3,800,000 square miles. The area of the United States proper, with Alaska and the islands, is 3,742,155.]

The Poems of Ossian

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Was the real author of the "Poems of Ossian" ever discovered?

A SCOTCHMAN.

[There was never anything to "discover" in the line you mention. The undoubted author of "Ossian" was James McPherson, who, in 1670, published the poems claiming that they were translations from ancient Highland manuscripts. The deceit was apparent even in McPherson's day.]

The Number of Mormons

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

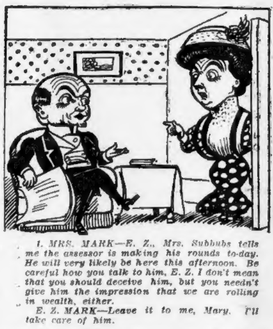
Will you kindly give me the number of Mormons in this country and also state whether many of them are to found outside of Utah.

READER.

[The latest figures show that there are in the United States some 300,000 Mormons. The bulk of them are in Utah, though they are to be found in Nevada, Idaho and other localities.]

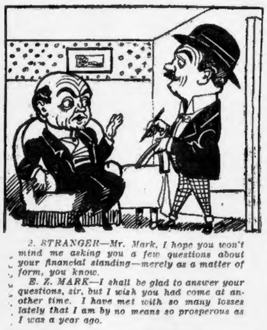
E. Z. MARK IS INTERVIEWED

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner



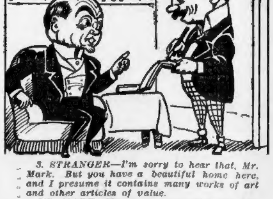
1. MRS. MARK—E. Z., Mrs. Subbubs tells me the assessor is making his rounds to-day. He will very likely be here this afternoon. Be careful how you talk to him, E. Z. I don't mean that you should deceive him, but you needn't give him the impression that we are rolling in wealth, either.

E. Z. MARK—Leave it to me, Mary. I'll take care of him.



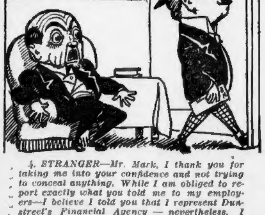
2. STRANGER—Mr. Mark, I hope you won't mind me asking you a few questions about your financial standing—merely as a matter of form, you know.

E. Z. MARK—I shall be glad to answer your questions, sir, but I wish you had come at another time. I have met with so many losses lately that I am by no means so prosperous as I was a year ago.



3. STRANGER—I'm sorry to hear that, Mr. Mark. But you have a beautiful home here, and I presume it contains many works of art and other articles of value.

MR. MARK—Not so many as you might suppose. The fact is, I seem to be the natural prey of all the swindlers in the United States. They have managed to get away with almost everything I owned.



4. STRANGER—Mr. Mark, I thank you for taking me into your confidence and not trying to conceal anything. While I am obliged to report exactly what you told me to my employers—I believe I told you that I represent Dunstreet's Financial Agency — nevertheless, I shall use my influence to have you given as high a rating as possible.

E. Z. MARK—What? You're from Dunstreet's? I thought you were the assessor!

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

How to Attain That Life of Usefulness Which Is Being Sought More and More by Humanity

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

I DOUBT if ever in the history of the human race so many people were reaching out toward ideals of usefulness and unselfishness as now.

Perhaps this is because there are so many individual creeds, and so much liberty of belief is granted to evolving humanity.

When plants are crowded into small space, and compelled to push up through the same aperture, they grow sickly and many of them die for lack of enough soil.

When each is allowed his own freedom and can look at the sun from its own standpoint, they grow vigorous and strong. Different plants require different soil and varying degrees of the sun's rays.

Each soul to-day can, if it will, see God in its own way, and worship Him according to its own light, and its own power to see light. It is not an age of church-going, but it is an age of increasing spiritual hunger.

Individual Thinking

LONG ago I used to think it would be a great thing for the world were there only one great church, one creed for all humanity.

But I have come to realize what a mere form such a religion would become, with a few figureheads in authority, and no individual thinking done by the masses of humanity.

The more creeds the better for the evolving race.

The one thing to desire is that each soul lives up to the highest requirements of his faith.

What is called metaphysical thought has possession of three-fourths of the intelligent people of the English speaking world to-day.

It is a line of thought as old as the Universe, and is nutritious for the mind, as whole wheat bread for the body.

A young woman who has no money has fallen into this line of thought, and she is anxious to make her life a blessing to the world. Just how to live an unselfish and worthy life and benefit the race puzzles her as it does many older people.

Thousands of men and women are wishing they could be of use to humanity, and are continually neglecting habits and manners which help to make life unpleasant for others about them.

We cannot do good to others until we are good to ourselves. We cannot make others better until we make the best of ourselves.

The very first duty we owe to the Creator is to finish ourselves.

That is the work which is given us to do.

Unselfish Habits

BODY, mind and spirit must all unite to form the perfected human being. So long as we live in the body, we must give it attention and make it attractive as the home of the spirit and the spirit's messenger, the mind.

Orderly habits, becoming and well-worn clothing, agreeable voices, correct language, proper pronunciation, an attractive manner are all steps toward living an unselfish and useful life. They help to beautify the earth.

An attractive manner necessitates an easy, graceful poise of the body, a good carriage, a knowledge of how to sit, stand and walk, and the ability to listen well. Careful table manners are important factors in an unselfish life. Nothing is more selfish than spoiling the meal hours for others by spread elbows, audible eating and the toothpick habit.

The habit of self reliance and the ability to make one's own enjoyment is another unselfish habit. The woman who is forever relying upon others to entertain her or to open ways for her to entertain herself can never be a great help to the world.

Self Culture

TO sum up—the cultivation of all the agreeable and pleasing qualities, the self-reliance which develops mental resources for enjoyment, thoughtful lines for others in small things, an avoidance of gossip and talebearing, a nature which rejoices in the pleasures of others and sympathizes with their troubles, and knows how to divert the minds of the sad to hope and cheerfulness, this is the practical method to "help humanity" and make "the world better."

She who does this will be given larger tasks afterward.

And this preparation requires no capital.

Observation, perseverance, memory and attention, self control, self denial and continued belief in our ability to attain the ideal—these are all that are needed to obtain the result.

She who makes herself an unselfish and agreeable woman does more for the world than she who neglects her womanhood while trying to do charitable work.

It is a truism that charity begins at home. And it begins with one's self. Build first yourself—and other structures will be given you to build.
